Time for Getting a Regional Wastewater Recreational District in Place... or Not?

Written by Janet Juroch

Garden Valley -- An informational public meeting hosted by 2 Fork Water and Sewer was held on June 1, 2017 in Crouch to discuss the project planning and costs for creating a Water and Sewer District throughout the Garden Valley area. Tim Farrell of Mountain Waterworks is Project Manager and Engineer. He was hired by local Garden Valley resident Don Weilmunster to look into a feasible plan for the area with associated engineering and costs. The City of Crouch, Terrace Lakes and all over Garden Valley have aging systems that may benefit from this proposed plan.

The Mountain Waterworks job is to build a project, get funding and make a project affordable at $600 - $800 per year of sewer service. Grant funding is a huge part of the plan to get low rates. Now it is time for the public to get serious about developing a re- gional wastewater district or not. A petition to the 2 Forks Recreational Water and Sewer District can be made individually or through HOA groups. This can be a letter or a simple petition form.

After review of how many people are for or against, this will help to decide if this project keeps the momentum it has with grants and permitting. A 20-year plan document, required for funding, will at least be in place, if there is reason for people to shelve the project. However, the public should be made aware that in the meantime, the project costs will increase. The draft facility plan has been approved by DEQ and public comment is needed in order to qualify for federal funding.

The project relies on the fact that Mr. Weilmunster has a state-of-the-art Sewer Plant located at Southfork Landing that can be set up and used to capacity with potential expansion. The sewer plant was designed to support Southfork Landing subdivision. The 2008 economic downturn brought the subdivision project to a halt. Since that time, the efforts to resurrect Southfork Landing have been slow to progress.

Payette River water quality is looked at, as the health of the river is downgrading. There is a concern that economic development cannot move forward with failing systems, which can affect home values.

Don Weilmunster has an invested interest in seeing that Garden Valley have a proper wastewater facility. A Recreational Water and Sewer District could ensure future development. The ownership and management of the wastewater facility would belong to the District, with five elected board of director members. The District would then deal with all future expansions to the facility.

The treatment plant plan would be similar to the Avimore subdivision, located northwest of Boise on Hwy 55. Farrell explained that the sewer planning area would cover Garden Valley, Crouch, Terrace Lakes and Southfork Landing. Current plant capacity is for about 300 homes. However, it was explained that this can be expanded to serve between two and three thousand hook-ups, which could serve the entire area. Weilmunster is donating the first 500 hook-ups on a first come first served basis. Nine hundred hook-ups would mean the plant would need to expand and add components for storage, pumps, treatment and aeration. Mixers and solids handling components would also need to be added.

The collective system alternatives vary in costs depending on how far the hookups will entail. Project costs and layouts of all three plan ideas were presented. Rural grants make this much more affordable and possible. Funding infrastructure can come from different entities: US Army Corp of engineers, USDA – rural development, IDEQ- State Revolving Loan Fund, and ID Department of Commerce that has block grants, or FEMA – Boise County Hazard Mitigation Plan.

“A sewer district model benefits rural communities,” Farrell said and explained how the Payette Lake system worked. In 1969, the Clean Water Act had adopted extensive testing. They set up as a water and sewer district in 1971 by a special election of voters. Now, they benefit from clean water and have a district to better monitor the sewer system.

Most those in attendance at the meeting rejected the idea of a regional wastewater treatment plan. Attendees expressed fear that their sewer bill would escalate if there was a district. Some don't want to pay for sewer, since their septic is basically free. Farrell explained that no one would be forced to hook up. Others were concerned for the changes to the small town atmosphere with continued growth. Still others were concerned of where this all started and would say “follow the money.” Farrell explained that overtime the valley could lose access to the treatment plant, if there became a different owner.

When asked about water quality, Farrell explained, “The Middlefork of the Payette has phosphates, but the Southfork may still be fairly clean. Many septic along the Middlefork are old and failing. They are feeding into the groundwater and then go into the Middlefork. Nobody is monitoring these unregulated septic. There are 2000 septic in the same condition in the area.”

Tim Fritzley, developer of The Edge Resort, explained that through his processes re-

Granny's Closet 10th Year Anniversary

Written by Janet Juroch

Garden Valley -- Granny's Closet celebrated their 10th anniversary by providing a luncheon for any one in the community that wanted to come help celebrate. Spring salads entrees and desserts were offered. The guest speaker was Garden Valley School Superintendent/Principal Greg Alexander, who told of the story of his mom and the dedication she had to keep her kids clothed even during the hardest of times. He related that story to how Granny's Closet Thrift Store does the very same thing for the community, whether it is a family facing hard times, or someone lost everything to a fire, the store always has plenty to help the community. He also spoke about the generous donations that Granny's gives back to the community through the strong support of the store by locals who donate and shop there as well. Ruth Richter oversees the operations of the store which is a part of the GV Senior Center. The audience was also treated to a few "granny's" modeling outfits that were all discovered at the store. This included styles for gardening to lounging or getting dressed up.

Regular Granny volunteer, Anita Sherwood, was modeling her outfit that was perfect for gardening attire.

GARDEN VALLEY SENIOR & SOCIAL CENTER NEWS

By Al Scharf & Ruth Richter

Thanks to everyone in the community and our many visitors who came from further away to celebrate our Granny's Closet 10th Anniversary Party last Saturday. It was great fun, delicious food, interesting speeches, and some nice prizes given away as well. A special thanks to Merrily Mosman for heading up the whole event as well as all of the others who gave extra hours of their time to make sure everything got done and was beautifully set up!

There is NO potluck this Wednesday; it would seem there is little interest from the community in attending the monthly event.

Be sure to plan on attending the annual membership meeting of the Garden Valley Senior Center which will be on Tuesday, June 27th, beginning at 5:00 p.m. It's your chance to have your voice heard and to vote for Board members as well as being updated on the year's happenings at the Senior Center.

The 4th of July is coming very soon; stop in at Granny's Closet to purchase items that will help show your patriotism ... flags, t-shirts, decor. We have a good selection that won't last very long!

GV 5th Graders Finish Adopt-A-Pilot Program

Written by Mil Koch

Garden Valley -- Mrs. Keelee Harrold's Fifth Grade Students finished the Adopt-A-Pilot program at the Garden Valley Elementary School by giving oral presentations at the Nampa Warhawk museum. After 10 lessons, ranging from Math, Science, Aviation Principles to Art, the students each researched one of the many displays at the museum and prepared an oral presentation of their chosen topic.

The first stop was the Boise Airport, where the students got a close up look at the day-to-day operations. They got to go into the "heart of the airport": Airport Operations and were briefed on matters such as security and air traffic. Then they went to the baggage area and airport maintenance. While on the bus touring around the airfield, they saw planes from different airlines land, take off and taxi, as well as several Idaho National Guard A-10s. Back into the Airport building, Bella and Nora, two of the Airport's Explosive Detection K9s, were more than happy to demonstrate their search skills to the Fifth Graders. The dogs were loved by all.

Back into the bus, with a quick stop for Happy Meals for lunch, it was on to the Warhawk Museum in Nampa. Every student went looking for their display. After they were all located, each student presented their research of the display in an oral presentation to their classmates, teacher, pilot and the chaperones. Even some of the Museum staff and volunteers stopped by to listen to the presentations. The Fifth Graders did a great job. The field trip was this year's grand finale of the Southwest Airlines sponsored program that Capt. TJ Koch has been teaching for 11 years now in Garden Valley.

The Idaho Department of Fish and Game provided fishing rods, tackle and bait. Seasons Grocery & Restaurant provided 48 hotdog lunches for kids and their parents. A raffle drawing was held for participants, including prizes from Simply Fun toy store, Seasons grocery, Idaho Dept. of Fish and Game, and the Idaho City Ranger District Employees.

A huge thanks to the Idaho City Chamber of Commerce and all those who participated, including donations of the facilities, time, support, food and the prizes that made this event a success!

Letter to the Editor

Something is very fishy about the 2 Forks LLC. Garden Valley citizens are waking up, digging up facts and asking troubling questions; questions like:

“Why is the 2 Forks Recreational Water and Sewer District both a Boise County taxing district and a registered Idaho State LLC with the exact same name?”

“Why did Mountain Waters deny ever hearing of the LLC when asked during a public meeting?”

“What was the business of DLJ LLC?”

“Did the 2 Forks trustees vote to expand the district as the statutes allow?”

“As required by law, where are the 2 Forks meeting minutes?”

“Why retain the exact name of the Boise County taxing district including the word District in the LLC registration?”

Here are some facts gleaned from the Secretary of State web site. Anyone can check them out.

The history of this LLC is as convoluted as only a lawyer can make it, but here are the results of citizen research. The dates are important. The Articles of Organization for DLJ LLC was filed Oct 8 2004 with Robert Drozda of Drozda Law Offices Boise as registered agent and Linda Steiger as member. The registered agent was changed to Linda Miller in 2005. Through the years members Diane Steiger, Linda Miller and James Miller rotated as executives or members on annual reports. DLJ LLC was dissolved by Linda Miller on March 13, 2013. On July 15 2013 a Certificate of Organization was again filed for DLJ LLC with Chas. F. McDevitt as registered agent and Don Weilmunster listed as the only member. The address listed on the C of O is PO Box 4, Garden City 83622, probably a typo. Then on December 14, 2014 a request for name change was filled by Don Weilmunster to change the DLJ LLC to the 2 Forks Recreational Water and Sewer District LLC. The 2014 annual report lists Chas F. McDevitt as registered agent and Don Weilmunster as president with Linda Weilmunster as the only member.

The statutes require regular meetings of the trustees of a Water and Sewer District and minutes of these meetings to be published. Where are these minutes? Mountain Waters never responded. Something is rotten in Boise County and Garden Valley. We need answers!

Annual Lowman Community Meeting Loaded with Information

Written by Janet Juroch

Lowman -- Lowman had their annual community meeting with speakers from different agencies covering topics of interest to the area.

John Kidd, USFS Ranger in Lowman, spoke about the continuing work in the Pioneer Fire perimeter, including roadside salvage and restoration, trail work and bridges work. Pine Flats campground was cleaned up in time for summer camping. The USFS was able to get an Emergency Situation Determination for salvage wood with bids to begin about June 23. They will let people know road closures associated with salvage operations for public safety. "No firewood can be taken in fire perimeter," Kidd said apologetically to everyone. At the end of August culverts will be replaced in the Pioneer Fire areas. He said, "Always watch for new road closures, due to activities in the fire perimeter."

There is an awareness that the Eclipse will bring people up for the viewing, but they want the airstrip to remain open for emergencies. Bear Valley is in the center of totality path, but might be closed for viewing. Kidd explained, "That is when there is spawning salmon."

Commercial mushrooming has been slow with only 150 commercial permits, out of 400, bought. After June 30th, the Forest Service is hoping to open the areas for picking for everyone.

Corey Taylor, F&G Conservationist in Garden Valley and Lowman, talked more of statistics of the winter effects on wildlife. Feeding stations helped, spending at least $20 thousand for feeding 1,500 elk, and another $41 thousand repairing animal damages. The deer fawn population suffered a lot. They were able to collar 30 fawns and all 30 died. Elk calves did a bit better, as well as the adults. Taylor said, "We do not want a bad winter next year." F&G wants to still hear about thoughts on the feeding program.

In response to a hunter survey, the new elk hunting tag plan was explained. On July 12, at 10am, F&G will sell half of the tags at vendors (Garden Valley Chevron and the GV Market) or at F&G outlets. The other half will sell online later in the day. Taylor feels getting tags online is "a better chance." An increase in fees starts in 2018. Fees are used to help mitigate crop damages. Taylor reminded everyone that only 10% of the tags go to non-resident. F&G get most of their budget money from tags.

There are reports that the South Fork of the Payette fishery has seen a decrease in the number of trout. There was a proposal to start stocking fish from Grandjean to Garden Valley. No numbers were available.

Wolf packs are balanced with the general hunts. There are still many packs running around Lowman, Deadwood and into Silver Creek.

County Commissioner Roger Jackson came to speak in place of Alan Ward. He characterized the work of the commissioners saying "Things are just running along." However, he was also not happy to report that there are "no forest funds this year." He explained that the county received only $48 thousand dollars from Secure Rural Schools funding that is used specifically for roads. Jackson said, "This is hard when it used to be over a million. If there is no additional money, there will need to be a road tax." He encouraged everyone to write or call their Idaho Legislators to reconsider the SRS funding for Boise County.

Jackson reported on the slow process of turning over Banks Lowman Rd. to the State, with the first section starting at Banks and continuing to the GV airstrip, is close to being ready. Jackson said, "The State keeps adding little things for us to do before the State can take the road over."

Paul Rekow of Boise County Weed Control revealed that the spotted knapweed chemical is available to spray. Toad flax has insects on them so they will keep those plants from spreading. He wanted people to be aware of West Nile virus, particularly noticed in equine cases. At the waste sites there will no longer be free tire days, but Rekow said, "Thanks to the county commissioners, you can bring in 2 tires each dump visit."

Chris Cole is the newest Clinical Operational Officer of the all volunteers Lowman Fire Department. He has been an EMT about 6 years. Cole said, "There is a desperate need for volunteers, drivers, and [they] will provide training for anyone wanting to become an EMT." He reminded everyone of the Ambulance Fundraiser is July 1st & 2nd, including a breakfast, a raffle and garage sale. They also sell ride tickets at $27 to be used for a transport to valley. Life flight insurance is $65.

EMS Director and his job is to mitigate and recover from disasters. He said, "I can't help with private property issues or mosquito abatement." His main job is trying to work on the BC Hazard Mitigation plan. Gardena Bridge is first on the list for hazard mitigation. Money will be provided by FEMA. He will also teach communities about emergency preparedness. Boise County has an EMS Facebook page and advised to "like" the page to get announcements and to sign up for AlertSense on the county website.

Showalter says the Solar Eclipse will be a busy time for EMS. Traffic will be a serious concern. Showalter says, "Just tell family and friends to come sooner than later. Make sure you have glasses. You need special filters for cameras, including cell phones or they will get fried. There are plans of bringing State Police from up north and south. Life Flight is getting extra helicopters. Medical helicopters might be available from Gowen Field." He added, "Just make sure gas tank is full, and you have plenty of supplies. You may not get anywhere very fast." Other reminders is there is an Idaho Office of Emergency Management planning meeting for the public to learn how to handle the solar event at 7:00pm on June 22 in Garden Valley at the Community Hall.

Lowman Fire Volunteer, Doug Brown asked for volunteers, reminding everyone there is a subscription fee of $50 for fire protection. Labor Day weekend is their fundraiser with a BBQ and raffle. He gave a shout-out to all the volunteers who helped for 21 days on the Pioneer Fire. To finish the evening off, Brown presented retirement plaques to honor Elena Miller and Will Hovey.

HSB's 21st Century Community Learning Center

Written by Tracy Koslosky Horseshoe Bend -- Linda Young is the director of the 21st Century Community Learning Center (CCLC) in Horseshoe Bend. The program is affiliated with the school and had about 70 enrollees in grades K-8 for the 2016/2017 school year. The students attend after school until 6:00 p.m. Monday through Thursday and from 10 a.m. - 2:00 p.m. on Fridays. The program will also run for 2 weeks during the summer, the final week will be June 19-23. The CCLC program is part of the No Child Left Behind Act of 2001 and received bipartisan support when it was introduced. With the help of federal funding (by way of grants) community learning centers are established to help provide students in low performing and/or high poverty areas with academic, artistic, and cultural enrichment activities. The objective is to help those schools and students meet state standards in subjects like reading, math, and science. The program was also set up to offer the students a variety of activities and to bring families and the local community together to assist in the educational process. The CCLC of Horseshoe Bend has partnered with the public library and YD Adventures Idaho for many of their activities. The program is staffed with an academic leader, an enrichment & activity leader, a lead substitute, and 3 aides. The program is currently funded through the 2017/2018 academic school year, but President Donald Trump's proposed budget will eliminate all funding for the CCLC in subsequent years.

While there are 1.8 million students currently taking part in the program nationwide, the Trump administration believes that there is no evidence that the program works. Advocates of the CCLC continue to argue that the program is a success and that it has helped improve both student's learning skills as well as their testing scores.

The current administration singled out the program in its budget synopsis saying, "The program lacks strong evidence of meeting its objectives, such as improving student achievement." Not so, according to the Charles Mott Foundation, which found "overwhelming proof that the program is a success." The foundation found their proof in research papers and articles written by over 100 experts in childhood education. "The afterschool field is in a strong position because it can make evidence-based claims about its public value on an array of commonly valued youth outcomes, such as improved attendance, grades, homework completion, classroom participation, behavior and — depending on the focus — achievement and performance," Heather Weiss, founder and director of the Harvard Family Research Project, wrote in the Mott report. "These programs also contribute to an array of positive developmental outcomes, including socio-emotional skills and healthy behaviors that support learning, and they prevent a number of problem behaviors that are detrimental to school and life success." In the wake of the released budget plan supporters of the CCLC went to work on trying to convince the administration of its benefits. They believe that if the program doesn't survive it will have a devastating impact on students and their families as the CCLC also helps support working families avoid the burden of finding quality afterschool care at an affordable price. Supporters are encouraging constituents to contact their federal representatives and encourage them to spare the 21st Century Community Learning Centers from the chopping block.

Meanwhile, it's been business as usual at the HSB CCLC. Young is currently preparing for the next school year and is optimistic about the future. She is currently seeking local residents to help prepare the program's grant for future funding and is reaching out to the community for volunteers to assist with the program. "We would love to have people who could come read with the students and help with activities. The kids get excited when community members come in to talk or teach them something new,"

Young said. The program also relies on members of the local community who help provide the CCLC with funds for the "extras" that the grant doesn't provide for. Recently the program was awarded $200 by the Horseshoe Bend Women's Club. Young wants «to thank all community members who have donated their time or provided snack for the students, it's really appreciated."

Community members that would like to get involved either by donating their time and skills or assisting with the preparation of the CCLC's new grant for funding are encouraged to contact Linda Young at youngl@hsbschools.org -or- (208) 781-0030.

Baby Animals are Better Off When Left Alone

Idaho Fish and Game -- Being the peak time for wildlife to have their young, the Idaho Fish and Game offers this simple suggestion to those well-intentioned people that discover baby animals that appear to be abandoned - leave them alone.

Each spring a myriad of baby birds, ducklings, goslings, squirrels, fawn mule deer, calf elk, baby raccoons, and baby rabbits are taken from the outdoors and brought to Fish and Game. The unfortunate part of these well-intended "rescues" is that in most cases, the animal was not lost, abandoned, or orphaned.

"Just because the mother is not present, doesn't mean the youngster isn't being properly cared for," cautions Clay Hickey, Fish and Game wildlife manager based in Lewiston. "If you encounter young wildlife that seems abandoned, it's best to leave it alone."

Many wild animal mothers often leave their offspring alone for extended periods of time to feed, rest or to find food for their young. As baby birds mature, they often leave the nest in their efforts to hone their flying skills. Adult birds continue to feed their offspring until such time that the young birds can survive on their own. The survivors either smarten up fast or quickly fade from the scene. While this seems unfortunate or cruel, this is a normal occurrence in nature.

Mammals such as deer, elk, and pronghorn routinely leave their young ones in a secure location, moving off to feed and returning later - sometimes several hours later - to quickly feed their young and leave again. For the first few weeks these offspring have a survival strategy of remaining camouflaged, motionless, and scent-free to avoid predators. This allows the lactating mom to forage away from their young for much of the day.

"Resisting the urge to pick up that deer fawn may seem cruel, but it's the right thing to do," Hickey added. "The mother is probably nearby just waiting for you to leave."

Many times when well-meaning people take young wildlife from the wild, their chances of survival are not improved, but lessened. Most do not survive well in captivity and many lack survival skills to allow release back to the wild.

Fish and Game has two alternatives when dealing with animals removed from the wild. Wildlife rehabilitators can attempt to raise the animal and return it back in the wild, but this option sometimes fails because the majority of young animals brought in are often in poor condition and providing the proper nutrition is a huge challenge. The animals that do make it generally have no survival skills and have often unnaturally formed bonds with humans. Fish and Game can attempt to place the animals in zoos, but most zoos now refuse to take the animals because of crowding and potential disease concerns.

"The reality is that the youngster's fate is usually sealed - in a bad way - when it is 'rescued' from the wild," Hickey says.

If you find a baby bird, duckling, squirrel or other critter, the best approach is to leave it undisturbed. Only move the animal if it is in harm's way, like found wandering in the road for example. Placing baby birds in a shrub or on a tree branch will help them avoid house cats. Don't fret about getting your scent on a baby bird. The myth that birds will abandon their offspring once humans have handled them is just that: a myth. Most birds lack a sense of smell. Note the location carefully and contact the nearest Fish and Game office who will be able to advise you on the best action to take.

Bats are also currently migrating back from their wintering grounds and as they move through, they often roost in places that might seem odd, like low on the side of buildings, tree trunks, and even in people's gardens. If a bat is hanging upside down in its normal position, and not on the ground, leave the bat alone and make sure that pets and children do not disturb the bat.

Do not touch the bat. If you find a grounded or injured bat, contact your nearest Fish and Game office.

In addition, do not plan to raise wild animals on your own. Young wild animals require special care and feeding that is beyond what the average household is prepared to manage. Additionally, possession of most species of wildlife taken from the wild is illegal in Idaho.

In the spring when wildlife reproduction is at its peak, you may have the good fortune to observe a nest of birds or a litter of young mammals with no adult in sight. Enjoy the sight but if nothing is obviously amiss, it is best to leave young wildlife alone.

Taking a Walk on the Wild Side Idaho Rally International

Archer Rowe (below) was able to participate in a ride along. He said, all smiles, "It was amazing and a lot of fun!" His father, Jason, was surprised at how much the vehicle "drifted."

The Idaho Rally is gaining in popularity and supported by Larry Miller Subaru of Boise. This year there were a total of 53 vehicles registered, 10 of which were UTVs. The course varied to allow more access to public roads. "This is a HIGH SPEED Motorized Event with Cars, ATVs and UTVs," says Rob Blout, Chairman & Clerk of the Course.

Boise County employees (above) clocked out and spent some time racing with the Idaho Rally group on Media Day. Pictured: (L-R) Shawn Smith, Sarita Loya, Jason Rowe (back) and Brandon Bettys. Sarita said still trembling and with a smile, "We drifted a little more than we thought around one corner, but we made it!"

Photos by Eileen Capson

Bettys (left) noticed the suspension was a little more loose, but was impressed at how well it went around the corners -- even though the car was not a Subaru!

Smith (left) said it was "exhilarating" and quite the experience to trust a driver "you don't know," with a 100 foot drop down to the creek, while traveling at 80 mph on a dirt road!

Several UTVs (below) also raced.

LEGAL NOTICES

Thank You Letter from Sharon Bidegain

It's going on 6 months now since my husband was killed in an accident at work. I feel the need to show my appreciation to the many people who have helped me get through the shock, deal with the loss, and continue on the course life has mapped for me.

First, I want you all to know that, due to foresight on Byran's part, I will be okay. I'll never be wealthy by any stretch of the imagination, but I will survive. And I will do my best to honor him, always. Love does not die when a soul leaves this existence, but it does change. I'm still finding that out every day.

I want to thank our Sheriff, who had to break the news that day. I want to thank my supervisor at work, who accompanied him to my home, and then stayed with me until my house was filled with family, neighbors and friends so I would not be alone.

Thanks Mom and Dad for babysitting me through the first few barely functioning days, and for allowing Sunny to stay with me at your place.

To my folks and my uncle Mike for encouraging me to hire a law firm to help me deal with some of the red tape (the recommended firm is awesome!). I have used them like a precision cutting tool to slash right through all that red tape, and things are starting to settle down.

To my next-door neighbors, who continue to help and advise me, who show up and do things while I am at work (I am often surprised when I come home and find weed eating done, the garage tidied, snow removed, many other things) so I won't have to worry about it.

To all the folks from the school district from the Superintendent, who offered the high school for the memorial to the other maintenance staff who set up the gym and cafeteria and took it all down again when it was over, to the faculty members who came to the memorial, to the ones who stop me in the halls when I look a little stressed just to make sure I'm okay.

To the Idaho City Community Club for organizing the feast after the memorial, and the businesses who contributed to the memorial. Byran would have appreciated you, as do I.

To the folks who put cash

Letter from Sharon:

in my hand that first couple of weeks so I wouldn't have to worry about meals, knowing that would be the last thing I wanted to think about. To the business owners and staff who made and delivered a few meals when I was too broken to leave the house. To friends who continued to provide a couple dinners each week while I adjusted to going back to work.

To Byran's own family, who are also suffering his loss, and continue to love me and support me as I will do for them for the rest of my days. I love you guys! To his daughter, who continues to inspire pride in the brilliant and stunning young woman she is becoming.

To friends I hadn't spoken to in decades, who stepped up and did amazing things like offering to make cremation pendants or purchasing a beautiful urn for Byran's ashes, or just texted me or contacted me on the phone after all those years and continued our friendships like they were never interrupted.

I live in an amazing community, have two amazing families, and am part of a much larger virtual community as well that astounds me daily with it's outpouring of support. There is no way to name every individual who has helped nurse me through the last half a year. I won't even try. You know who you are. Suffice it to say that I am grateful to you all. I'm not sure I would have survived this loss without each and every one of you. Thank you.

With love,
Sharon Bidegain

BOISE COUNTY

Assessor's Corner

By Chris Juszczak

By now most of you have received the 2017 assessment notice and may have noticed an increase in value for your land and/or residence. The 2017 assessments are based on sales that occurred from Jan 1st 2016 through Dec 31st 2016. 2016 was a strong year for sales in Boise County with 189 houses and 119 unimproved (bare ground) parcels of land being used for our ratio study.

The Assessor's office works closely with the State Tax Commission to determine what market value is. It is the duty of the Assessor's Office to stay within 10% of market value per Idaho Statute 63-205 and Idaho Administrative Code 131.05.

In addition to market trending (the influence of current market), the factor that most directly affects your assessment is the size of your residence and any other buildings on your property. Other factors considered include type of foundation, siding, windows, insulation, roof and interior finishes. Our goal at the Assessor's Office is to use approved mass appraisal techniques to ensure similar properties are valued uniformly and equitably.

We strive to make sure the information we have on record is correct. Please feel free to call and speak with an appraiser after you receive your assessment notice to discuss the information used in establishing your assessment.

Sincerely,
Boise County Assessor
Chris Juszczak

Wastewater Treatment in Garden Valley

quired for his development, he speaks with IDEQ on a regular basis. He explained, "DEQ is watching all the phosphorous in the rivers. They can potentially come after Garden Valley when the levels get too high, which then there will be forced monitoring. Costs will rise. Phosphorous has to go through a treatment facility to be removed not through modern septs."

Many attendees had concerns that Weilmunster would have all the district votes, because of his property at Southfork Landing. Tim revealed to the audience that, "At this time, Weilmunster is paying out of his own pocket to keep the facility available for Terrace Lakes.

His idea to utilize the facility is part of the legacy he wants to keep for the area." Other concerns mentioned were about possible seismic activity, especially when pipes could go through the Southfork area and under the river. Farrell stated "There are safety controls are in place for that."

Ultimately the community will need to decide how and what type of project they desire. Some in attendance to the public information meeting were opposed to the idea of a regional wastewater district plan.

BOISE COUNTY COMMISSIONERS' MEETING

Transcribed by Eileen Capson

June 6, 2017

Present: Commissioners Alan Ward, Roger Jackson and Laura Baker.

EXECUTIVE SESSION: [Time 9:01am to 9:37am] Closed session, Chairman Ward said, "No action required."

CONSTITUENT INPUT: Trudy Jackson asked about purchasing the old benches from the courthouse that are no longer in use. Commissioner Ward said they were going to discuss that and would get back to her.

A gentleman spoke concerning the closing of the roads for the Rally race, but mentioned that more were open this year. Commissioner Jackson stated that they were trying to move the rally onto private land. The rally has been going for 7 years.

MINUTES: The official meeting minutes were approved for May 30, 2017.

EMERGENCY MANAGER: Bob Showalter spoke about taking free FEMA classes.

CLERK: Mary Prisco reported some "good news". She continued, "We have a number of accounts with CenturyLink and Lisa, in looking at those accounts, realized that only 2 of the, I believe 6 accounts, we're not being charged sales tax... She was able to work with them and they are giving us a 2-year retroactive fix on the other 4 accounts that had been charged tax." She said it wasn't "a whole lot of money," but came to about $500.

PROSECUTOR: Dan Blocksom said they were on their 8th or 9th revision of the "drug testing policy." Chairman Ward asked how often the testing would be for the county employees and elected officials. Prosecutor Blocksom stated, "Based on my research, we can't random drug test everyone... We can do reasonable suspicion testing for anyone, if someone looks like they're high or something." Those that work with machinery or drive county vehicles, for safety purposes could be tested. Emergency Manager Showalter thought it odd that a county employee could be excluded from random drug testing. Blocksom said it was federal law. Showalter asked, "Why wouldn't finances be a part of that, because drugs generally take money. And if you're doing more drugs, then you're needing more money. If you're dealing with money, you're going to take that money." Sheriff Jim Kaczmarek agreed. Chairman Ward said, "I thought it said something like that in there." Prosecutor

Blocksom said if it doesn't, then he would research to "justify adding that."

EMERGENCY MANAGER: Showalter is posting pictures to Facebook regarding flooding and information from NOAA.

ASSESSOR: Chris Juszczak said they would like to do some "long-term" testing for radon through the winter months. "The Sheriff obviously needs to get his building done and I've turned [over] the numbers to you guys for the other buildings in the county. And nothings really alarming on any of those. So, I think we're good right now, as long as we keep our windows open." The Sheriff would be addressing the "mitigation" of this issue next week. He said there was money in the budget, which was intended for something else. The sheriff continued, "I think we need to prioritize that and just get it done."

Assessor Juszczak said that the assessment notices were sent out to county residents.
