U.S. Secretaries of Agriculture & Interior Address Forest Management & National Resources

Written by Eileen Capson

Boise County -- "If we take care of the land, the land will take care of us," says U.S. Agriculture Secretary Sonny Perdue. "Our responsibility as stewards is to leave it better than what we found it." He spoke further about working together for "rural prosperity" and recognized the diversity of the land. "One size doesn't fit all. Idaho is different than Georgia, and Florida is different from Washington. And we have to understand to give local people the opportunity to impact federal policy."

Secretary Perdue continued, "Regarding the U.S. Forest Service and our public lands,

whether we're on BLM land or U.S. Forest Service land, I think it's time we start looking at forest as crops, as agriculture, and use them. Because we know that healthy forests can produce jobs, they can produce wildlife, and they breed a healthier environment ecologically, if we manage them. And I think our U.S. Forest Service has the perpetual there to manage those lands." He then spoke about harvesting our resources, "Our people know how to grow trees; they know how to harvest trees. We just need to unleash them and recoup the great resource we have out here in our U.S. forests. For all of our local economies and for the value of the U.S. taxpayer."

Interior Secretary Ryan Zinke received a large applause when he noted, "I'm not an advocate for sale or transfer of public lands." He continued, "It allows us public access. It allows us to enjoy our public lands." He spoke as a former Navy Seal and about the years ahead, which should be focused on "trust. We have to reestablish the collaborative effort to work with the communities. We want to be the department that again is the advocacy, not the adversary. So, when you see a BLM truck out there, I want people to think about land management and not law enforcement. I don't want to see Smokey the Bear armed with a flak jacket. I want to see our finest managers and superintendents being the great stewards of the land, respected and revered."

Secretary Zinke continued, "There's a consequence of taking the productive land and making it unavailable. And the consequence is, we don't have money for the things that we know are important, sewer systems, water systems, road systems. We have the finest lands in the history of the world! Because we've got great parks, we've got great forests, we need to manage them a little more aggressively so our children's children can look back and say we did it right."

He would prefer to spend money on research and energy development. "I don't want your sons and daughters ever to have to go to war over energy that we have here. The President has said energy dominance. That's different than energy dependence."

U.S. Interior Secretary Ryan Zinke.

HSB Blue Ribbon School

Written by Tracy Koslosky

Horseshoe Bend - The students from Horseshoe Bend Elementary School gathered together in the school gymnasium on May 30 to celebrate the school's nomination as a Blue Ribbon School. As one of only 2 schools nominated in Idaho by the State Department of Education, the students had much to be proud of. Lead teacher, Cora Larson, presided over the event and praised the students for having a "no excuse attitude". Larson went on to say, "We don't let our challenges define us or hold us back."

The school was nominated after they placed in the 95 percentile in English Language Arts and Mathematics. Larson had a special surprise for all the students, they all received t-shirts, in blue of course, proclaiming them Blue Ribbon School nominees. Larson asked the students if they knew why they had won the nomination. Answers ranged from, "We listened and did very well," and "We tried our best," to "Good teachers who pushed us to do our best."

Larson then said she would call out the names of everyone who helped make the nomination possible and asked them to stand as she said their name. She then proceeded to name every student in the school, as well as teachers and supporting staff. Soon everyone in the gym was on their feet. Larson then told the attendees "This is not the end, we are on an upward path and we will continue to go up and up!"

Soap Box Style Racing Event for Independence Day

Written by Janet Juroch
Garden Valley -- It is not too late to be a part of a new event for the July 4th celebrations in Garden Valley. This is an evening where you can listen to a street band while you wait for the Chamber fireworks in the park. There will be Soap Box Derby races where there used to be fireworks. Since the fireworks have moved to a different location nearby, a new event will fill the evening for racers as well as race viewers. The evening will be a perfect time to watch kids race along Old Crouch Road.

Within a month, cars and sponsors can easily be ready to begin the challenge. Time is getting short but the car can be ready very quickly, depending on how flashy the car gets painted. Though this will not be a sanctioned soap box derby race this year, there is hope for good participation to make this an annual event for the area. An official sanctioned Soap Box Derby event could be entirely possible and races would be longer and with more competitors. Families make a vacation to attend these races throughout the US.

The way the race works is simple. Each driver will jump into the next available car of their size and race it! This will be a head to head down Old Crouch Road! The number of cars and the number of racers will depend on single or double elimination. For the kids interested in racing, every racer will have one practice run since most kids will probably never have driven a soap box racer. Age brackets still to be determined, but the largest car will hold someone up to 155 pounds and 6' tall.

This Soap Box Derby race will be a bit different than the usual races and a little shorter. Think of it as trials to see if competitors will continue each year. It will be a lot of fun for the people who watch as well. Idaho X-Sports already has a small car and another business committed to sponsoring the second car.

To Sponsoring a Car: Jason Sawin of Idaho X-Sports is looking for sponsors for cars ($600 to $800 each). Each sponsor can do a custom paint job with their logo and the Garden Valley Chamber logo. Jason says, "We need at least 6 cars for the race, 2 small, 2 medium and 2 large. The sponsors can also take their car to their business and put it up on display and use it again the following year. We just ask that it be made available for future races in Garden Valley."

Donations for prizes can be given to the Chamber of Commerce location or at Idaho X-Sports summer location on the weekend and designated for the Soap Box Derby event.

Letter to the Editor

The 2 Forks-Mountain Waters meeting was informative from several perspectives. For example, I learned the contractor's statement of work/scope of work precludes them from looking at any solution alternatives other than the 2 Forks waste water treatment system. So site specific solutions, of which there are many, tailored to Terrace Lake's specific needs are outside their solution domain. They HAVE TO USE the 2 Forks solution.

Here, let me pull out my notes. First, without any objective evidence to support their arguments, there was a lot of talk about the environmental condition of the rivers. So, if there is a problem is it due to a few homes adjacent to the river(s) or is it systemic? No evidence either way. So why opt for a multi-million dollar systemic solution which bails-in the entire valley and constrains that solution to the SFL facility? (One guess, see #3 below) Second, my infrastructure cost estimate of $15M published as an IW letter to the editor is about right. Third, the Mountain Waters role is actually that of an "Economic Hit Man" for the local oligarch(s). The advertised $50 to $60 monthly sewer service fee is based entirely on accumulating grants and loans over time from:

- U.S. Army Corps of Engineers (total to date $1M)
- USDARural Development Fund (50%)
- DEQ State Revolving Loan Fund
- Idaho Department of Commerce (Block Grants)
- FEMA - Boise County Hazard Mitigation Grant Plan

In other words, we're looking at locked-in debt slavery ad infinitum. Most of the money derived from sewer subscriptions, grants, and loans would flow to 2 Forks ($800K per year) along with millions of gallons of ground water (12M gallons per year). Without a constant flow of grant and loan money it would be impossible to maintain the low monthly sewer service subscription price, which covers only a tiny fraction of the Total Cost of Ownership (TCO). It is a colossal transfer of wealth, measured in dollars and gallons, flowing from Garden Valley residents and businesses to 2 Forks, enabled and enforced by a State sponsored tax charter. The financial risk to individuals and businesses is crippling. If a constant flow of loans and grants cannot be maintained over time then the sewer subscription price would have to increase by several orders of magnitude to cover the locked-in debt liability payments. All republics eventually devolve into oligarchies. That is where we are, both nationally and locally.

THE ARRIVAL OF LIVESTOCK TO THE BASIN

Written by Historian, Jerry Branson

The first arrivals in the Basin had to feed off of wild game for a meat source in 1862. Over time, that would change but it was an issue that led to illness initially. But wild game was decimated quickly as deer migrated to lower elevations during the winter. Grouse was decimated also as were wild snow shoe rabbits. The early settlers had no vegetables or any other source of food until the pack trains arrived in 1863. Even then the amount of other foods was limited by the amount of goods a pack train could carry. By the late spring of 1863, some 3,000 people were in the Basin. A pack animal could carry only about 300-400 pounds of goods. But mining tools like shovels and picks were needed as well as a lot of carpentry tools. So were pots, pans, dishes, utensils and cups. In 1863, many pack trains consisted of just people and the immediate belongings such as clothes, small stoves, and a host of other items. Placer pipe was also hauled in by pack trains. Therefore, food could not be 100% of every pack train load. That lasted until the spring of 1864 when crude roads were built and freight wagons could be utilized. Meanwhile, most food consisted of sacked items like beans, flour and potatoes. Canned goods were very heavy. The cans in those days were made of flattened iron and shaped into cans, then soldered together. The cans weighed three times as much as modern day aluminum cans.

No roads existed anywhere in the Basin and even along the route until 1864. The Oregon Trail was the only available source for transportation. But once the packers had to leave the Oregon Trail, travel was quite slow over very rugged terrain, with streams of varying sizes to cross. Pack trains would stack up at ferry sites and even shootouts occurred when packers got impatient. A trip from Walla Walla or Umatilla took weeks to make. Then a return trip was about as long. Then the pack train had to be loaded and sent off again for the Basin. A round trip could not be made in less than a month. Indians also robbed the pack trains by killing many if not all the packers and taking the horses, goods and all. That included any cattle.

All of that left those already in the Basin short on food and especially choices. The growing season in the Basin at elevations of 4000 feet and up did not help to grow gardens, although many did. But in the winter of 1862/1863, scurvy was a widespread big time health issue.

Since wild game became a scarce commodity by spring, what was needed was livestock. That meant chickens (eggs), cattle, hogs, and sheep, also needed for meat and for wool. Herds of cattle were brought in from California in 1863 and 1864 via up through southern Oregon past Goose Lake and across to the Malheur River, then on to Farewell Bend. The route was up from the Sacramento valley and on past Goose Lake on what is now the Oregon border and then across the wet areas north of Malheur and Harney lakes, then eastward across the Blue Mountains to the Malheur River and down to the Snake River, going on to the Boise and Payette valleys. But not all these trips were successful. At least two attempts to bring cattle over this route were cut short. One was in June 1864. An entire herd of cattle and sheep disappeared along this route. In August, 1864, cattle and sheep herders were attacked by Indians on the Goose Lake route. Some two herders were killed and 150 head of cattle were stolen. Native Americans within the Great Basin were always short on food which meant raiding cattle drives, which were common. Just as with pack trains, fewer men driving livestock were easier targets for Native Americans to attack. Sometimes the Native Americans would just scatter the cattle and leave the herd handlers to recover some of their herds but not all.

Most of the Native Americans in southern Oregon were Paiutes, relatives of the Northern Shoshoni people. They lived all across northern Nevada. Their leader was Chief Winnemucca. He lived mostly around Pyramid Lake north of present day Reno. They also lived in southern Oregon, especially in what became Harney and Malheur Counties.

Some hogs were brought in later when roads meant wagons could carry them. The hogs arrived in better shape. Some in herds were driven from central Oregon. Cattle were also driven across Oregon via the Oregon Trail from 1863 to 1865, establishing herds in the Boise and Payette Valleys. Some cattle were then driven from Jerusalem Valley via Harris Creek and on to Placerville and down to Upper Payette (now Garden Valley). Still other cattle were taken from Jerusalem Valley to Upper Payette by going over the ridge from Jerusalem Valley and down Deer Creek to the Payette River.

Sheep were driven from Oregon to the Payette Valley where Andy Little expanded to thousands of sheep and grazed them all over the Basin and eventually beyond to the Stanley area. He also had sheep in Ada County.

But the Shoshoni were not accustomed to sheep or hogs as a food source. If such drovers encountered Shoshoni especially, they were fairly safe unless the Shoshoni were after the drovers' horses, which often happened. Packers were attacked for that reason alone.

Hogs were imported to Jerusalem Valley and finally on to the Basin towns. Meat markets flourished in 1863 and well beyond in all Basin towns. Every town had at least one butcher shop. Placerville and Idaho City had more.

Chickens were brought in by wagon from Oregon, spreading chickens all over the county. Since the Boise River was on a major flyway for wild birds, geese and ducks were plentiful as well. But native birds such as grouse also increased the options for meat sources. Grouse were killed off rapidly from 1862-1864 and became fairly scarce. Thus a wide variety of meats became available. Wild turkeys, now plentiful, were non-existent in the early days.

Because of the need for horses and mules in the Basin, livery stables were established in every town. Initially tall grasses were cut in Upper Payette and the lower valleys and hauled to the Basin towns. But regular hay fields began to yield crops as early as late summer of 1863. During the winter of 1862/1863, all horses were moved to the Boise and Payette valleys. That would begin to change by 1864 as more barns and stables were built in every town. Jackass Gulch north of Horseshoe Bend got its name from winter pasture land for burros.

Trail & Park Improvements are Staying High on To Do List

Written by Janet Juroch
Garden Valley -- The Parks and Recreation District is constantly developing new projects to make Weilmunster Park and the Garden Valley Trail system become a unique place for locals and visitors to enjoy. The recent regular meeting had a full agenda. Board members present were Leigh Ward, - Chair, Sandra McLain – Treasurer and interim secretary, Don Weilmunster, Steven Menlove and Thor Oden.

Delegations came to speak about usage of the park for coming events. Chris Gill represented the Syringa Club, which is a local philanthropic organization. She proposed looking at setting up a memorial representing all military divisions by where a flagpole will be established in the park. This would include stands with military emblems on each one and following protocol necessary. Board approved moving forward with this project.

Darl Allred of Allreds Adventures spoke about the Games in Park going on July 1st and. This is a Greater Garden Valley Chamber sanctioned event to go along with Music in the Park. He updated the board about vendors coming for July 1st and 4th with a possibility of carryover events on the 2nd. Board approved the event updates. Darl’s idea of doing family friendly fireworks on the cement basketball slab as a July 3rd event was met with disapproval. The board felt cleaning the cement would be difficult after firework residue. Darl will consider using the parking lot instead.

James and Regan Byrd came representing the North Fork Championships organization to discuss their use of park for their event in June including camping. James says that everyone enjoys being in Crouch for their venue. Discussions of future camping in the park could determine if the NFC stays in this area. Sandy explains how allowing camping may set a precedence of other wanting to camp in the park. She explained there will be an irrigation system soon and more trees planted this year. The board was not in favor of camping in the park, however, Thor did question stopping a “good group like this.”

James explained that the NFC is a growing event. James said, “We could cap the camping if that helps.” The decision by the board was that after this year’s NFC event they could revisit everything again and make an acceptable plan.

Cindy Hill-Petit came to propose a St. Baldrick’s Fundraiser at the end of July and asked for use of the park for this event. St. Baldricks is a national organization that raises money for childhood cancer by shaving heads. Cindy has done these events in Colorado for 11 years and now being a GV resident would like to organize an event here with the GV Chamber as a sponsor. The board approve to use the park for the event.

Park improvements were looked at. Park maintenance bids will be needed once a plan is available. Basketball court completion and equipment installed once the park dries out. Holes will need to be dug for three metal garbage cans, fence post holes and various park signage. Board approved a split rail rustic fence which will limit car access to the grounds. Other discussions, included expanding the electricity in the park to allow even more events with vendors. A decision was to aggressively prepare a plan that will decide long term electrical needs for the park. Changes will not be ready for upcoming events.

The board wants to pave the GV Trail. Surveys are planned to get community input for trail usage. A grant application will be written to seek funds from Idaho Parks and Rec to help with the costs. This will need to include letters from local agencies and businesses showing approval and interest in a paved trail for the community.

There are still many plans for the park to discuss including weed control, staining the pavilion, picnic shelters, a volleyball court and a playground. The position of Secretary on the Board is open as well. The public is welcomed to the meetings. The next meeting is June 28 at 6:00 in the Library activity room.

Visitors can look at a sign at the trailhead and see what things to look for, including the Mountain Bluebird boxes added to the trail last year.

Horseshoe Bend Awarded Funds for Physical Activity Equipment

Horseshoe Bend -- State legislator Terry Gestrin and representatives from the Blue Cross of Idaho Foundation for Health visited Horseshoe Bend Elementary recently to present a check that will help purchase additional physical activity equipment for the school.

The funds are a result of Representative Gestrin’s participation in the Steps for Schools Challenge, which rallies legislators to increase — and count — their steps throughout February. The challenge is organized by High Five Children’s Health Collaborative, an initiative of the Blue Cross of Idaho Foundation for Health.

“Steps for Schools is a great way to help others and do what you should do for yourself,” Gestrin said. “Horseshoe Bend Elementary is bringing back physical education next year and this money will help purchase the equipment needed.”

The Steps for Schools Challenge invites lawmakers to wear a FitBit fitness measurement device as they walk between meetings and hearings, as well as after hours. Those who mark an average of 10,000 steps a day during the month of February will earn funding for physical activity equipment or walking programs at schools in their legislative district. Legislators with the highest step counts will earn $3,000, $2,000 and $1,000 respectively. The funding comes from High Five, an initiative of the Blue Cross of Idaho Foundation for Health created to promote and encourage better health for all Idahoans through wellness and prevention programs.

“Legislators really stepped up to be a positive influence in their communities,” said Kendra Witt-Doyle, Blue Cross of Idaho Foundation for Health Executive Director. “Representative Gestrin’s efforts will give Horseshoe Bend Elementary much-needed equipment that will promote healthy habits in our children.”

Superintendent Dennis Chesnut added, “We are very appreciative of Blue Cross of Idaho and Representative Gestrin’s efforts and consideration for our school. We are bringing back a full-time PE teacher for the first time in years, and the money will help us purchase much-needed equipment for the program.”

On Monday morning, she stated, “We are working to stabilize the roadway at this time--and have crews on scene. Our goal is to reopen as soon as safely possible.” By late afternoon the highway was reopened to traffic, with the assistance of flaggers.
