this blaze.

Overhead, a helicopter could be seen lowering dangerously close to the ground, strategically emptying buckets of water. The helicopter would then circle around, and down the mesa, to Mores Creek to refill.

There were several critical rural fire departments that played a role in structure protection: Robie Creek Volunteer Fire Department (VFD), Clear Creek VFD and Wilderness Ranch VFD. Intense black smoke filled the air, but no homes were burned in this fire.

Boise County Deputies developed a perimeter to keep in mind the public's safety. Air support with tankers laid a ring of retardant around the area of the fire, containing its progression within a matter of a few hours.

Emergency personnel stated this looked to be an "electrical fire," burning about 2.5 acres. However, Sheriff Jim Kaczmarek confirmed that the cause of this fire is still under investigation.

Motorcycle Accident ~ Local EMS Spring into Action

EAST BOISE COUNTY -- On Tuesday afternoon, August 1st, a motorcyclist detoured from Highway 21 on a tight curve and drove into Mores Creek. Emergency response was quick to arrive, working together like a well-oiled machine to aid the injured motorcyclist, direct traffic and allow for the correct procedures to be followed to ensure safety. Life Flight was not available, so the 29-year-old woman was transported by ground ambulance to a Boise hospital. Photo by Eileen Capson

Meeting on the Growth of Idaho City ~ Future of the Forest Service

IDAHO CITY -- "It's hard to think about Boise County in any way without considering the Forest Service, because, honestly, it's about 60% of the land mass." The ranger district was formed in 1908. He said that decisions made from a national level, on the part of the Forest Service, is in part specific to Idaho City. However, individuals or residents in Idaho City may disagree with these measures.

He said that large fires really started in 1994, when 200,000 acres burned. "Honestly, 200,000 acres are almost the norm now. It is changing dramatically in the west. Large scale fires, like it or not, it seems to be part of that change. And it's the driver for the National Forest. Our firefighters' numbers have grown, our budget all goes to that, and that drives the policy of the National Forest."

"For me, I don't want to make this a fire themed discussion, but it has to be, because this is a fire prone place," said Petersen. He said the Forest Service "officially" puts out about 98% fires, at less than a quarter acre. "A reasonably and efficient machine." However, he added, "It didn't seem too efficient last year, because very few fires get that big."

There are plans for "thinning" on some "chunks of ground" in the experimental forest. With the expansion of Idaho City, there is concern for large-scale fire.

There are currently about 120 people working at the Idaho City Ranger District.

"The future of the Forest Service, for here and for Boise County, is really to reduce the existing fuel loads in and around town. And that's where

Brant Petersen,
Idaho City District Ranger

our focus lies. We have lots of other competing interests," including special uses in recreation, mining, range and small timber sales. "All of those are important to us, but if you don't address and focus on the ground centered around Idaho City and reduce that fuel load, then a lot of these other things just don't matter."

This meeting was hosted by the Idaho City Chamber of Commerce on July 18th.

IC City Council Meeting

Written by Eileen Capson

IDAHO CITY -- The Idaho City Council met on July 26th for their regular meeting. They spoke regarding an engineer's estimate for the waste water project in the amount of $7,926.42. The council then made a motion to approve this payment for the waste water facility. An alternate power source, a backup generator for water and sewer, was discussed and motioned for the purchase price of $35,092.

Mitchel Tain was thanked for his 15 years of service on the Idaho City Historic Preservation Committee.

Idaho City Little League asked to be approved for an event at the ball park for the eclipse. They will be using the Rodeo grounds for parking, as an overflow for the ball park. This is a non-alcohol event, and they will be charging for parking and selling water to benefit the maintenance of the ball park.

Water tanks are being filled for a "contingency plan". It is presumed that the aquifer had "fallen," which caused the water shortage. It was discussed with a constituent that there had been water rights taken from the city, some time ago, by the State and sold. Wells are projected to get online within the coming year. There is work to do to "tie in" the water piping. The power poles were set by Idaho Power. There will be a treatment for arsenic and fluoride, prior to going out into the water system. New water rights were purchased for drilling.

A business owner complained, "My water bills went astronomically higher." The City said they were trying to get into compliance with DEQ. Council Member David Martin said, "We realize the pain everyone is feeling."

The system is up and running smoothly, but the council is still asking residents to conserve water.

What's Up in Idaho City?

Written by Senior Center Coordinator, Dee Woodstrom

Is it hot enough for everyone yet? Stop by the Senior Center for lunch on Tuesdays and Thursdays, we are air conditioned. Everyone is welcome (you don't have to be a "senior" to enjoy lunch there). While you are there, check out the silent auction items...lots of canning goods this time. August 24th is the deadline for you to bid on your favorite or much needed item(s).

We've had another great month at the center! It has been a wonderful experience working with such nice people and getting to know so many of our local patrons.

I can't thank all the donors and volunteers enough for all they do for the Senior Center here in Idaho City! But I will say it again...THANK YOU! Your generosity is greatly appreciated! I also want to thank the kitchen staff for the hard work they do every day they are there. We are always in need of volunteers to help with the Food Pantry. We need strong people to help load the bus with food and then to unload it when it gets back to Idaho City and we can always use people for clean-up when we are done serving the families. Also, if anyone can pick up bakery items in Boise on Mondays or Wednesdays, please contact me at 392-4918, I can give you more information.

We are serving many families at the Food Pantry; which happen on the second and fourth Wednesdays of each month, 11:30 am to 2:00 pm.

I'm happy to announce that we are having a Health & Beauty Fair on Tuesday, August 29th from 1 - 3 pm. Stop by at noon for lunch featuring Mexican foods and stay for the fair. I hope to see you there!

Until next time...

BOISE COUNTYBoise County Receives Final Restorative Justice Officer Grant Award

BOISE COUNTY -- On June 27, 2017, the Boise County Board of Commissioners accepted three Millennium Fund grant awards totaling $59,781 for state fiscal year 2018 (July 1, 2017-June 30, 2018). These grants have provided a large portion of the funding for the Restorative Justice Officer positions, more commonly known as School Resource Officers, for the school districts in the county. The purpose of the grants are to provide restorative justice interventions for youth ages 10-17 who have committed a tobacco, alcohol, or drug related offense at school. Restorative Justice Officers are Deputy Robert Hastie for Horseshoe Bend and Garden Valley, and Sergeant

John Archer for Idaho City. These grants have been written by Boise County Community Justice in partnership with the Idaho Department of Juvenile Corrections, Boise County Sheriff's Office, and the three school districts—Garden Valley #71, Basin #72, and Horseshoe Bend #73.

What are Restorative Justice Officers?

Restorative Justice Officers (RJOs) are uniformed sheriff deputies whose offices are in the schools. They address issues using by restorative practices—informal and formal processes that emphasize repairing the harm done to people and relationships. They also do preventative work such as facilitating character building circles or giving educational presentations based on trending at-risk behaviors. RJOs follow-up on delinquent behaviors of students reported over the weekends, they work to obtain resources for students and families, and provide increased safety in the schools and communities in which they work. As summarized by Horseshoe Bend School District Superintendent Dennis Chestnut, "The RJO program has been extremely valuable for our school district. Officer Hastie has developed positive relationships with students, faculty, and families in our community. He has worked with students in the classroom, mediated student conflict, and has applied restorative practices system-wide. We are fortunate to have this program."

What is the future of the RJO programs?

The first Millennium Fund grant award was in 2014 for the program in Idaho City. In 2015, awards were granted to start programs in Garden Valley and Horseshoe Bend. The majority of the grant funding is for personnel (20 hours a week for each district). The maximum funding allocation has decreased each year by 15% and that amount has been absorbed by the Boise County Sheriff's Office. The Basin School District contributes a large portion of the RJO's wages through a levy and has the only full time RJO in the county. Garden Valley School District has previously made a contribution for the program. The future of the programs is uncertain because this is the final year the Millennium Fund will be available. The Boise County Sheriff's Office will be seeking alternative funding sources through partnerships with the schools (similar to the Basin School District) and the Boise County Commission.

For additional information on the Millennium Fund grants or the RJO programs, please contact Amanda Leader, Director of Boise County Community Justice, at aleader@co.boise.id.us or (208)392-6767.

EMERGENCY SERVICES NEEDED IN PLACERVILLE FOR SOLAR ECLIPSE

Written by Janet Juroch

PLACERVILLE -- The City of Placerville has been anticipating the Great American Solar Eclipse 2017 and making emergency plans for the eclipse tourists that will come to Boise County. The main areas of impact will be Lowman, Garden Valley and Placerville with potential traffic nightmares on Hwy 21 and Banks - Lowman Road with possible spill over to the Alder Creek and Harris Creek dirt roads.

The emergency planning committee is well aware that many people will be coming for the not only the eclipse but the annual Placerville Hot August Nights event and other musical entertainment sponsored by Donna's Place. With camping sites close to town being made available for the events, some people are choosing to come to the mountain town and have a place for weekend entertainment but also view the eclipse.

That is why emergency services needs to require a plan. They also recognize that a lot of people come to the mountains and do not realize the hazards that can potentially happen in the mountains. This can include snake or insect bites, ATV accidents, fire, overheating and motor vehicle accidents. Health and safety concerns are a priority.

Emergency planning is important during this solar event. It is a once in a lifetime chance to view a total solar eclipse so there is anticipation that the could get congested and there is limited communication in the mountains. A plan needs to be in place so that emergency responders will know who to contact, the emergency kiosk locations and any method of response to emergencies. The objectives of such a plan is to be ready for public safety and fire prevention.

An Incident Commander will oversee the Communications. George Butters will be the Incident Commander (IC) in charge from August 19th through the 21st. Butters and other emergency responders will communicate by phone, pagers and cell phones. In some cases, the best form of communication will be through Ham Radios or a CB radio device.

They will have a sequence, or a checklist, to follow to address the incidents. Prioritizing needs will be the IC's job. Action Plans are followed which may include a medical plan, communications lists, incident radio communications and safety messages. A Safety Officer will look at a Site Safety Plan, if that is needed so that everyone can be informed of the potential dangers of falling debris or secondary explosions.

Responders will have different location placements in order to be ready for emergency services. Strategic locations will help in the event there are traffic congestions. There will be people set up at the store in downtown, the airport and at the "Y".

These preparations should help Placerville to be ready for any potential emergency. There are so many unforeseen incidents that can creep up when as many as 5000 people come to as small rural town of just over 50 people. Being organized with a written plan, objectives and check-off lists keeps everyone on the same page for responding to a variety of potential incidents.

The eclipse in Placerville begins at 10:11am on August 21st. The total (maximum) eclipse can be seen at 11:27am with totality lasting 1 minute and 34 seconds. The eclipse will continue to wane until 12:50 pm. Duration for the event is about 2 hours and 39 minutes. It is imperative to wear approved solar glasses and do not take photos with a camera. Eye and camera damage can happen very fast. Most vendors in southwest Idaho are selling solar glasses.

What to Do After a House Fire?

Written by Retired Attorney, Rick Murray

House fires are sudden devastating events and will leave you physically and emotionally drained. You need to know that help is available and how you can access that help. The first 24 hours after a fire are usually very busy. If there are injuries you need to seek medical treatment if required. You need to find a place to stay, possibly new clothing, medications, and other essential items for your day to day life. Reach out to friends, neighbors, relatives, and your church for assistance. The American Red Cross and the Salvation Army are two organizations that are helpful to families in need after a fire.

After, and even during a fire, it is usual for families to want to salvage items from their home. The fire department will let you know if it is safe to go in your home and what parts are structurally safe or not. Be aware that areas that look safe may be burned to the point of collapse regardless of how they look. So when you try to salvage items from your home do it safely. Many times the fire department will assist you in safely salvaging items once the fire is out. Once a fire department is called to an emergency, by State law, that fire department is in charge of the scene until the last firefighter leaves the scene or the fire department turns the scene over to another agency. Once the fire department leaves the scene you may want to board-up your home to discourage trespassers. If you can't stay in the home consider asking a neighbor to watch your home. The fire department will insure utilities are safe or they will likely have them turned off. If turned off the utility companies will have to determine if and when it's safe to turn them back on.

You are about to start spending money on living expenses and fire recovery, keep all your receipts and mileage. Locate as many of the following items as possible: drivers' licenses, social security cards, insurance information (including medical and home owners), medications (especially any prescription narcotics), credit cards, check books, cash, and jewelry. If you have to reenter the home to recover these items be sure it's safe to do so.

There are many entities you need to notify about the fire. You need to let family and friends know you are OK because with today's social media they are likely to know you were in a fire and be worried. If you are insured you need to contact your insurance carrier, your bank or lender who has your mortgage, the post office if you need to cancel home delivery of mail, and delivery services like UPS or FedEx so packages aren't left. You may need to notify your children's school if transportation will be a problem getting them to school on time, and your employer since it's likely you may need some time off to handle all the fire issues.

Do not throw away any destroyed items until after you make an inventory of lost items and document as best you can their destruction. Take a lot of pictures, but be sure you have an accurate date and time stamp on your digital camera. It's hard to explain why your pictures have December 2010 as a date for a 2017 fire. If you are insured be sure to contact your agent and find out exactly what you have to do to pursue a claim. You might have to secure the building a certain way and do the inventory of items a specific way.

Now begins the fun part, valuing your lost property. You will need an objective valuation method for your insurance claim and the IRS casualty loss deduction for which you may be eligible. The sentimental value to you is important but not objective. There are two objective ways to value property, cost when purchased (supported by receipts) less depreciation (or loss in value over time), and current fair market value. Bottom line you will need to defend an "actual cash value" or what you could have gotten for the item the day before the fire. Be aware that you may face "fire sale" or salvage estimates of value for your items made by the insurance company. These are usually very low and are supported by prices of similar items sold at auctions. The problem is these are documentable. You will have to have some way of documenting your cash value estimate.

The couple had looked forward to retiring in their mountain retreat, but then disaster struck. Fire quickly spread from a chimney fire throughout a cabin near Idaho City in April of 2016. Luckily, neighbors offered the couple a place to stay during the process and the community offered their support. Photo by Eileen Capson Restoration companies can provide services that run from clean-up to reconstruction. Many of these companies will negotiate on your behalf with your home owner's insurance company. In any case be sure to get a written description of the services to be provided and an estimate of costs. Get references! Be sure you know who will pay for the services. Will the insurance company pay the restoration company directly or will you pay them and then be reimbursed by your insurance company. If you pay be sure you know exactly how much the insurance company will reimburse you.

Replacing items like legal documents and money can be time consuming but you need to do it. Here are some ideas that may be helpful. If you have burned or mutilated paper money, handle it as little as possible and send what you have to the Treasury. They will separate the bills and return new bills to you. Be sure to include your name and address. Send it registered mail return receipt to: The Department of the Treasury, Bureau of Engraving and Printing, Office of Currency Standards PO Box 37048, Washington DC 20013. Today, many of us keep our most important records and legal documents on our computers or smart phones. It is worth considering backing-up data in the cloud so if your devices are lost in the fire you can get a new computer or phone and recover your data. An alternative is storing the original document in a fire proof safe or even better in a safe deposit box at a bank. Documents you need to consider safe grading or replacing include: your will, your end of life directives like your living will, medical and financial power of attorney, trust documents, stocks or corporate bonds you may own, and military records especially if you receive veterans' benefits.

The hardest things to lose are your family memorabilia and heirlooms. They are likely to have high sentimental value and low cash value. Besides how can you ever purchase a replacement for grandma's quilt? You may be best served by thinking about how to safeguard these before a fire hits. Can you put these items in a safe storage like a fire proof safe or safe deposit box? Can they be stored in one location that is easy to get to in the case of a fire and is easily removed containers, rather than spread out around the house or tucked away in the attic?

Today is the time to do a little fire pre-planning to save you time and heartache after a fire.

BOISE COUNTYPlanning & Zoning Puts Business Requirements Through Rigorous Questioning*Written by Janet Juroch

BOISE COUNTY -- Boise County Planning and Zoning had two Conditional Use Permits to review at a recent meeting in Garden Valley. Much deliberation took place to make sure regulations and plans fit the Unified Land Ordinance and The Boise County Comprehensive Plan, both of which can be viewed on the Boise County website.

The first CUP was for a Bed and Breakfast in Lowman. Owner Carol Stockton answered questions about her development named Eagle Horizons Mountain Oasis at 15 Memory Lane in Lowman. Stockton's presentation explained use the existing building and the small changes she has made. P&Z requires details of any plans include landscaping, site grading, lighting plans, irrigation and noxious weed plans.

Stockton explained the need for more lodging in the area and since she is directly across from River Rafting, she wants to provide a nice getaway for tourists. She explained, "I want to be a good steward of the land and create a rustic comfort." She comes from Florida but wants to honor the Code of the West to keep her place fitting in with the look and landscaping plants of the area.

Many questions were about fire codes and the possible need for a sprinkler system were addressed. Dan Gasi-rowski, P&Z Chair, was concerned that the building be in compliance with current fire codes. In the Lowman area, according to Garden Valley Fire Chief John Delvalle, "The Fire Code Enforcement falls on the Sheriff. It is basically a large house." They concluded that her B&B does not fit into certain requirements. Delvalle did recommend that Stockton look further into ingress and egress options for the fire department in the event of a fire.

There was approval to move forward with the planning for opening just before the solar eclipse with the caveat that some questions be resolved and brought forward at the next meeting on August 3rd in Garden Valley.

Also at this Public Hearing there was an amended CUP hearing for the Edge Resort of Garden Valley. The 28 acre parcel of land at Banks-Lowman Rd. is owned by Tim and Denise Fritzley. Originally there was a plan to have a gas/convenience store in the first phase, which was approved. Due to utilities in the road right of way and the lengthy period it would take to have Idaho Power move them, Phase 1 is delayed.

Fritzley now wants to start on Phase 2, which P&Z has previously made known of this entire phased project, which includes building residential home for the manager, a lodge that can also cater to events like weddings, an RV park and mini cabins or cottages. One change would be to have a pub with an adjoining convenience store. Permits still need to be complete due to some design changes.

P&Z wants to still be involved in looking at the permits and facility plans. Fritzley asked to stop the continual phasing CUP processes since the plans and permits are basically the same even though there are minor tweaks in construction. Commissioner Rosemary Ardinger, "I want to continue with the Public Hearings to make sure the permits are in place." Chair Gasiorowski said, "No need to micromanage. Permits are out of their hands and Fritzley cannot do anything before the permits are in place." Commissioner Edith Williams expressed that she wanted Fritzley to "do his phasing work as needed, but to set a cap on the cottages and RV spaces."

Tim Fritzley (standing) explaining the Edge Resort of Garden Valley site plans to Planning and Zoning Commissioners.

Approval was made to continue the CUP with site conditions requiring further Public Hearings for Phase 2 and 3 and make sure permits are in place. Time will be set aside at the P&Z meeting in Horsehoe Bend on August 17th at the HSB Ladies Club to continue the conversation and Fritzley can present new information to the Board.

MOUNTAIN SATIREA Beat-up Old Rounder Moves On*DARK CLOUD

Sometimes you reach a point where you need to quit something and do something different. Whatever level of success or failure has been achieved, it doesn't get any better, though it can definitely get worse. When you love what you are doing, it is difficult to stop.

You can spend years at something getting good results and all of the sudden, everything goes south. Hindsight being 20/20, you really should have seen it coming, but you didn't want to believe it and refused to see the big picture because your heart was blocking the view.

I suppose in my case I saw it coming from quite a distance but just kept chugging along until it was time to stop chugging. A long run came to an end. It leaves a lot of spare time. Many things I used put off doing because I was too busy, I now put off because I just don't want to.

For the younger kids in the crowd, it's like you were on a roll at the video arcades and it looked like you were going to play for free for the rest of the evening. You knew all along it could happen and there it was: "Game Over" and you didn't have any more quarters in your pocket. The night was still young. On the way out the door you are told "You don't have to go home, but you can't stay here".

No, you don't have to go home, but where do you go? What do you want to do next? I'm thinking I'm going to take a little time-out here to ponder this over. Doing all those little chores is better left until minor emergencies occur because of my continued neglect. At least it becomes exciting. Plus, I know just how to handle it to make myself look like a hero in the process, if anyone is watching.

Though nobody expects anything from you, you still have to do something during the 8 to 16 hours you enjoyed being busy every day. It takes planning to retire. Some people take more time to explore weekend pastimes like playing golf or quilting. Golf and quilting rarely turn into minor emergencies like those chores you left behind, but they can help pass the time. What does a person do when you do when they enjoyed working nights and weekends?

Passion for what one does is a virtue when things are going right. It can make you look pretty stupid or even land you in court when things go wrong. It's hard to move on to whatever the next big thing that might come up when you really liked the last next big thing and never planned to quit.

Having plenty of time on your hands doesn't speed things up either; if you only had ten seconds to think about it, at least you would be on your way. It's just hard to lose interest in something that could have kept on for a while longer when you wake up in the morning and don't have some kind of schedule. Passion never completely goes away. It's like driving down the road where an old girlfriend used to live; you can't help but glance up at her window and wonder.

Stacie Anthony has been recently awarded "1st Place" for "Best Insurance Agency" in the Treasure Valley, 2017. She proudly resides in Horseshoe Bend, where she lives with her husband and their children. As an independent insurance broker, Stacie Anthony sells most types of insurance in Idaho; for example, health, life, dental, vision, hearing...Blue Cross, Mountain Health and Select Health. She also works with Medicare Advantage Plans and Medicare Supplement Plans. Stacie helps out those who are on the Obama Care Health Exchange. Presently, she is focusing her practice on health insurance, life insurance and financial/estate planning. With an extensive background working with Blue Cross and in patient billing, she has a unique grasp and understanding of insurance. "I love it! It's hard to even say that it's a job, because I love it so much! It's probably really weird to hear that about insurance." Stacie enjoys helping people with their understanding of insurance and walks them through exactly what they have in the way of insurance. "I really like helping people understand exactly what they've got and how to use their benefits. There are so many different types of plans out there. I don't think people even realize how many plans are available. I think that's why it's important for there to be independent brokers, like myself, because I'm not only selling this plan or that plan." She suggested that clients bring a list of all their medications, and a list of doctors that they see, to make sure they pick a plan that best serves their needs. She also does the applications for you for your Advanced Premium Tax Credit, which lowers your monthly premium payments and sometimes lowers your deductibles and copayments. Stacie added, "And I don't charge my clients for my time or services. I'm free!" Insurance brokers are paid a commission for their services by the insurance companies. Stacie is from Horseshoe Bend, but covers all of Idaho and will even travel to locations to meet clients. She also offers free financial classes once a month, covering topics such as debt, credit clean up, retirement planning strate-

ST. BALDRICK'S

A Local Community Has a Global Effect on Giving to Childhood Cancer Research

Written by Janet Juroch

GARDEN VALLEY --

Many organizations do lots of fundraising in order to keep certain activities and businesses alive. Garden Valley people always seems to come through when it comes to being giving to the community. This year's first Garden Valley St. Baldrick's fundraiser held at Weilmunster Park. Local celebrities such as DJ's from the radio station came to get their heads shaved to show solidarity with kids with cancer. They embraced the idea and were "rocking the bald".

Music was provided by Dick Polley and DJ Babe Boomer Terry Loyd emceed the event. There was a silent auction and food from Dickey's BBQ, who donated proceeds to the Foundation as well. Much ribbing and daring was going on followed by some fancy head shaving. Sometimes the barber would shave just a portion of the head and would not go any further until more donations hit the bucket that was passed around. Many of the shaves did not want to just have part of their head shaved.

Cindy Hill-Pettit was the event organizer. She owns and operates the Cranberry-hill Studio in Crouch. She has been part of the St. Baldricks' Foundation and organizing such events for 12 years. Cindy originally did these yearly events in Eagle, Colorado and says, "This is such a great cause and I would not even do this if I felt there was something not right with the foundation and how they spend their money. The transparency of the organization is amazing."

It is very apparent that her heart is in this fundraising event. Cindy figured that she had moved from Colorado and was done with even starting another event. Cindy was encouraged to start an St. Baldricks in Garden Valley, so much so that The Great Garden Valley Chamber of Commerce agreed to sponsor the fundraising event with their member.

Of course, there were naysay-

A few more bald heads running around Garden Valley and beyond. Recognize them now?

ers, saying an event such as this will not go over very well in the small rural town. It seemed in no time at all the idea was floating around Garden Valley took off and challenges to be a "shavee" for a good cause, which benefits children with cancer all over the world. The Garden Valley St. Baldricks' event now can rank among events that happen around the Idaho and the world. These events have raised well over 200 million dollars and provided 1,000 grants for lifesaving research.

Cindy said, "I am so proud of this fantastic group! With your hearts and souls, you came together and created an event that I could not have predicted! For the first event in our community, it turned out to be an enormous success! When all is said and counted we brought in over $9,000!!!! I believe that it's possible to make a difference with just the positive energy created and of course the donations will continue the research that will help save children's lives all over the world. YOU are the heroes that make it possible to CONQUER KIDS CANCER!!!!"

Honored cancer children had their photos and "their story" on empty chair memorials at the entrance. The survivors had "hero" capes on their chairs while the once who have passed on had angel wings on their chairs. The honored kids were survivors, Branden Joiner, Finn Rooney and Cohen Scriver. Angels were Garrett Schramm, Andrew Knapp, Jared Roberts, Beth Jones and Paul Merrill. A walkin-shavee, Tim Partlaur asked for his granddaughter, Savannah Thompson to be honored.

Barber Team included Jason Yearsley, Diane Carlson and Barbara. Other volunteers were Linda Ruppel, Carol Scharf, Nancy Blanchard, Merri Moriarty, Martha Bollich, Lorraine Bollinger, Barbara Boyer, Cathy Sears, Billie DeVolt, Caroline Pyle, Teri Day and Diane Caughlin. Team fundraisers were the Hairless Baboons, Slick Gourmet and John & Marilyn Cottingham.

Jan Solecki was the top fundraiser, commenting that being bald feels "feels "slick, especially the wind across my scalp, but all worth it for a great cause." Others were asked how does it feel to be bald. Cindy responded, "My glasses don't stay on my head and my hat doesn't fit," or Lorraine Bollinger said, "It is so much cooler and I love it".

St. Baldricks' is not widely known, unless you have a child with cancer and an event is in the area. Events like this are held in Idaho and nationwide. The Foundation prefers not to spend a lot of money on advertising and administration so that as much money as possible can go directly for research grants. This is a grassroots activity with much support established for anyone wanting to start a fundraiser. Many local people had not heard of the St. Baldrick's Foundation and therefore held back in participating. Going online and read-
