Sending Up Good Wishes for 2023 in Garden Valley

By Linda Ruppel, DDS

GARDEN VALLEY -- The New Year's Eve lantern lighting sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce was a popular event to kick off the evening. The kids had fun with a snowball fight while waiting for the lighting of the lanterns. It was foggy out, so the lanterns and wishes disappeared quickly into the night. This annual event benefits the scholarship fund that the chamber sponsors for the Garden Valley School District. There appeared to be a lot of newcomers and visitors who had fun at the New Year's celebration.

Kids got together for a snowball fight before nightfall, passing time until the lanterns were ready to send up.

The bone of Hugh Lindsay, for resisting an officer in Boise, has been fixed at $1,000.

Affidavits of representation of mining claims for sale at this office at 21 cents each.

The scaffold on which Herman C. St. Clair will be hanged was brought up from Boise several days ago by John Fitzgerald. It is the one on which James Ellington was hanged.

Jas. W. Hudson, who shot and slightly wounded the Marshall Bros. in Boise about a week ago, has had his examination and the bond for his appearance at the District Court fixed at $4,000.

The World has two new sewing machines - the Climax - which will be sold for $30 each, cash. An agent would charge you $60 for the same machine we offer for $30.

The shaft being sunk to prospect ground below the junction of More and Elk creeks has attained a depth of about eighteen feet. The distance to bedrock will be about thirty feet, leaving the depth of ground yet to be sunk through about twelve feet. The stream of water thrown out by the pump will measure about twenty-five miner's inches. The water has not increased during the past few days. The shaft can be continued on to bedrock if the flow of water does not greatly increase.

John Nevin has a letter from the San Quintin prison stating that the St. Clair, sentenced to be hanged January 14th for the murder of John Decker, has done time in that prison and also in Folsom prison, New York. The letter enclosed a photo of St. Clair and two photos of the tattoo marks on his body. They are exactly as described by the Idaho World. -Weiser Signal.

If Mr. Nevin will send these photographs to Sheriff J.A. Lippincott, of this county the question of whether the man who served terms in the penitentiaries mentioned is this St. Clair could be definitely settled. The Herman St. Clair who is believed by many throughout the State to be the man sentenced to be hanged on the 14th inst., is Eugene St. Clair. The latter is the man who went to Weiser from some town on the Oregon side of Snake River the morning the Weiser post office was robbed, and was suffering from a knife wound in the lung received in a fight the day before. This man has a large scar on the cheek, and is not tattooed. Herman C. St. Clair has no scar on the face, and is tattooed on the arms chest and legs. This is not at all certain that the man who served terms in San Quentin and Folsom is Herman C. St. Clair. It is safe to say that in almost every large penitentiary there are prisoners who are tattooed.

REMINISCENCES OF AN OLD MINER

Western Mining World

The experiences of an old miner are always interesting and usually instructive when told. If the history of men who have who have explored the wild regions for precious metals, since the days of '49, were written it certainly would silence fiction and sensational story; the men who venture into wild mountain regions, fighting their way against the painted savage and wild animals, often enduring cold and hunger that words cannot express, and probing the earth for her hidden treasures, that nations may have money and the people jewelry. When the old prospector opens the way and new mines are found by himself or some tenderfoot a most peculiar crowd settles in the vicinity. About the first business to hang out the sign is the saloon. But a saloon without gamblers and games is worse than a grub claim. Then comes the dance hall. A mining town without a hurdy-gurdy is a dead place.

This is the place where the miners spend their money and their evenings.

Says S. H. McKernan: Often have I seen the old miner with hair as white as the snow on the mountain tops, and whose attire consisted of an old slouch hat, grey shirt, starched with clay and flour sack pants with the brand on, dancing with the prettiest girl in the hall. An old miner with plenty of dust is the drawing figure among women. Deportment and dress without dust don't draw in a first-class mining camp. The old man, above all other men, is the most liberal to a fault; drunk he lets the proprietors help themselves out of his sack. I remember seeing a bartender in a camp in Idaho, called Hogem, take five ounces of gold dust for five drinks of "sure shot" whisky. I asked him why he took so much dust. Said he: "just to save Bill's life; you see he has been on a three days' drunk and has spent $1000; he has $1,000 more to spend but we must take it quick or he'll die before he gets sober." That very saloon keeper is a millionaire today and old Bill has gone to the happy hunting grounds.

Mining the working miners is the occupation of many who settle in the mining camps, and the bigger the miner's sack the better it pans out for this class. Joaquin Miller uses this to illustrate the fabulous riches of the Klondike, when he tells the story of the Portuguese who pays a woman $100 a day on condition that she does not speak nor dance with a certain miner. This reminds me of the woman who came to Placerville, Cal., in 1850 and opened the Hotel-de-Rustle. The following Sunday the miners turned out by the hundreds to dine at the new hotel. But they all wanted the very distinguished honor of dining at the proprietor's private table. Finally, it was decided that the man who would pay the most should have the honor. The first bid was three ounces. Someone doubled that. Then the bidding went by leaps and bounds and reached 50 ounces. Finally Long Tom, the tallest and most shabbily dressed and richest of them all, bid 100 ounces and won the distinguished honor. Talk about generosity and big pay!

I remember when Florence (one of the first mining camps in Idaho) was at its best, a fine-looking woman came into camp and opened a first-class restaurant. One day the establishment burned down and left the woman penniless. John Kelly the great violinist and singer was then playing at Little Boston's big gambling house. He heard of the woman's misfortune and went to see what he could do for her. She told Kelly she was the daughter of a wealthy merchant in Paris and had run away from home because her father had wanted her to marry a young nobleman. She had been teaching music and singing in San Francisco and had saved up $1,000. She had come to Florence to make a fortune, but now she was penniless. Well, Kelly made arrangements that she should appear at the big gambling ball and sing a few popular songs and trust to luck. At the appointed evening she appeared and the hall was crowded. She sang, "I Have No Mother Now." Ere she had finished the first verse every game was stopped; every ear was charmed and every eye allured by the sweet sad voice and beautiful form of the singer. She finished. Then the amblers abandoned their tables and pressed forward with the miners to the stage. They called for a repetition. Then John Kelly stood up and told the woman's hard luck story, her flight to America, her loss of every dollar. That was enough. The hardy miners were generous. The stern, cold gamblers stepped forward and weighed their dust or threw down their twenties; $5,000 was the amount handed to the fair singer. Then they requested the woman to sing "Sweet Anna of the Vale," as a receipt in full for their money. She sang the song and I am sure the crowd did not regret

City and County MASONIC HALL. -- The ball given under the auspices of the Masonic Fraternity, at their Hall in this city, the evening of the 27th ult. provided the most pleasant affair of the kind it has been our good fortune to witness in many a day. The attendance from all parts of the Basin was large, and by the time the hour for dancing had arrived, the brilliantly lighted hall was filled almost to crowding with the fair and festive of Boise Basin, who are wont to sue for pleasure at the urine of the god Terpsichore. When at about the hour of nine, P. M., the throng of "beauty and chivalry" had assembled at the hall, "Jack" Cheatley, Philip Brant and Dr. Bailey Simpson "awoke the echoes of the night, to music's sweetest strains;" the dancing began, and was kept up without intermission, until midnight when all repaired to the Luna House where a supper had been provided, in all respects, in keeping with the proverbial liberality of the "brethren of the mystic tie" and with Mr. Luna's well-earned reputation as a successful caterer to the comforts of the inner man. After supper dancing was renewed and continued until far in the morning. The ball was characterized by the best of food feeling throughout, and the occasion was one to be long and gratefully remembered by all who were so fortunate as to be participants in its pleasures.

BURGLARY-- On last Sunday evening, about the hour of 8 o'clock, some individual, not having the fear of the law before his eyes entered the Luna House in this city, and abstracted therefrom, a trunk belonging to a couple of Chinese servants employed in the kitchen, and containing, besides the clothing and trinkets belonging to the owners, in the neighborhood of $108 in coin. The thieves carried the trunk out to near the saw mill at the lower end of town and after ridding it of its contents, saturated it with kerosene and set it on fire. The light of the burning trunk was noticed by Mr. Fox, who went to the spot, but finding nothing of importance, and believing the fire to have been kindled in accordance with some Chinese custom or superstition, said nothing about it, and the fact of the robbery was not discovered until the next morning. We are informed that our celestial fellow citizens have been rallying each other quite merrily over their mutual misfortune, ever since it happened.

ty of former years, and to establish them upon a firm and lasting basis? Will railroads and inducements offered to capitalists to come here and invest their wealth, bring about the desired result? I answer they will. The people however, can do little in these matters - the Legislature much. It is; therefore, to that body we must look and if it does its duty, and does it now, by adopting measures which shall secure the early building of a railroad into the Territory, the prosperous days of the past will return and will endure. Every State and Territory in the Union is dependent, mainly, upon someone, or at least two or three sources of wealth for its prosperity. In some agriculture takes precedence in others, lumbering, and in still others, mining, and the prosperity of each will be found to keep pace with the development of its resources. It is necessary, therefore, that we should examine what may be made the source of our wealth, and second, ascertain how these sources may be developed. The first question is easily answered. Our ledges of quartz, bearing gold and silver, and other less precious metals, are too abundant not to be plainly seen. Too rich to lie dormant, too plethoric not to afford a handsome income when worked.

[Portion faded and lost to time]

If quartz that yields only three or four dollars per ton are made to pay in other countries why may not, we, with the same facilities, make quartz pay which will yield from five to fifty dollars per ton? There is apparently no reason. Our quartz will pay largely if we have the necessity to work it. This we cannot get without railroads. We would moreover, have ready market for every foot of lumber we could procure. Saw mills planning mills, and the like would spring up all around us. A business entirely foreign to an in the country at present. With our great abundance of water power, manufacturing would spring up. Having so rich a stock range our hills and valleys would swarm with thousands of sheep and cattle, and this would eventually be one of the greatest resorts for stock raisers in the west.

Then why doubt upon completing so great a work -- a work that will add so greatly to the prosperity of our young Territory. Can we sooner show to the world its value? Can we in a better way add to its wealth, to its population, to its importance?

We are persuaded that if we had the above facilities for communication, thus laying open the way for capitalists-- thus laying a firm and strong foundation-- that in a few years we would have a State comparing well with

New Hampshire, Vermont or Massachusetts in the class of its manufactures, its stock its busy villages and the industry of its inhabitants but reaching far beyond in the store of its wealth.

LETTER FROM THE CAPITAL. -- BOISE CITY, December 30, 1872.

EN. WORLD: - The editor of the WORLD, who is cavorting round these regions with old Hill and His Excellency, Gov. Bennett about ten minutes ago made an unconditional demand on the undersigned for a letter for the WORLD and overrun as I am this evening with pressing previous engagements, it will be almost impossible for me to give you a readable or interesting letter, for want of time.

The holidays, so far, have passed off very pleasantly, with the usual amount of gayeties. The little folks were made happy by a Christmas tree at the Baptist church. On Christmas eve a most delightful party came off at Hart's Hotel. On Christmas day the soldiers at Fort Boise had shooting matches, sack races, etc., and at night a most incredible dramatic entertainment and then a dance; as everybody was invited, a large number of ladies and gentlemen were present, and greatly enjoyed the pleasures which were generously provided for them by the "Boys in Blue," free of cost. Judging from the great demand for turkeys, chickens and fruit, a splendid dinner was prepared and eaten by the good citizens of the Capital. Tonight, there are three private parties to come off, and tomorrow night a dance at the Overland, and on New Year's most of the ladies will keep open house. So, despite the hard times, the holidays will be duly celebrated, and gayety and happiness will prevail.

[New Years' Day fell on a Sunday. Newspaper from Jan. 5, 1871.]

City and County.

Our New Year Day. - This holiday occurring on Sunday, - and Sunday, you know, is a sacred day in a mining camp, - it was not observed with the usual pomp and ceremony. Some of the male bipeds "took sugar in theirs," and seemed to enjoy themselves in that way, while the majority contented themselves with the simple salutation of "Happy New Year" and passed on. Some of the ladies expected calls and prepared fine collations, receiving a few "callers" and entertaining them in a customary manner, but the thing was a drug compared with former years. The day passed off with nothing unusual or exciting occurring. Monday being the "Ladies Day" some of the Bach's made arrangements for receptions, but New Year proper having been so quiet, the ladies seemed loth to assert prerogative. A few bent on fun any way late in the day, put out skirmishers to test the enemy, and we know of one party who plead "business" in advance of a general attack - "just to see." Soon the party came in force and were received by the enemy with a discharge from a masked battery that shocked them, as one of them expressed it, "clean to her big toe." Several small parties then sallied forth, and had a merry time for the remainder of the day. And so passed our New Year.

Foreign.

Thiers is announced as the representative of France in the Eastern Question Conference, which met in London. Jan. 3d.

Prince Napoleon made propositions to Gen. Changarnier of the French army, looking to the throne of France, which were peremptorily rejected.

The Pope has been offered an asylum by Prussia, Austria and England but it is thought he will go to Malta.

The total effective force of the Germans in France is 600,000, one-half of whom are engaged in the siege of Paris. Their losses so far, foot up 300,000.

Several unimportant engagements have occurred between the opposing forces in France. Both sides claim advantages.

Owing to the intense cold, military operations were suspended about Paris on the 22d.

The bombardment of Paris begun on the 27th, by an attack on the forts near the city, and continued all that day. The French replied with spirit. The city was untouched, but should be bombardment become general the city cannot escape. Although the French said the bombardment could not be begun, for want of heavy guns, the dispatches state that largest sized shells were used by the besiegers.

The French Bishop Dupanloup says that the American sympathy with France is misplaced; that the present rulers will never make a government worthy of support.

Queen Victoria has sent her congratulations to King William on his acceptance of the title of Emperor.

Russia continues her war preparations on a large scale.

Turkey has sent a force of 15,000 men to fight the Arabs and is protecting the Posphorus, as well as her harbors on the Black Sea, with torpedoes.

The Idaho World ~ 1898

paying their money. Five years subsequent I was introduced to this same woman in Helena, Montana. She had made a fortune at Eldorado Bar.

"Do you think the old, rusty looking miner has no appreciation of music or song? Why, I have often seen men who have lived for days in the solitude of the mountains come to town and walk into some big gambling hall and toss a yellow twenty to John Kelly to sing some particular song or play a favorite tune. Kelly often told me that in the early 'fifties he received as much as $500 for one night's playing in some gambling hall in Sacramento or some other of the big mining camps. Kelly was a reckless gambler and generally lost all his money to faro. He won $30,000 one night in Sacramento and lost it all the next day.

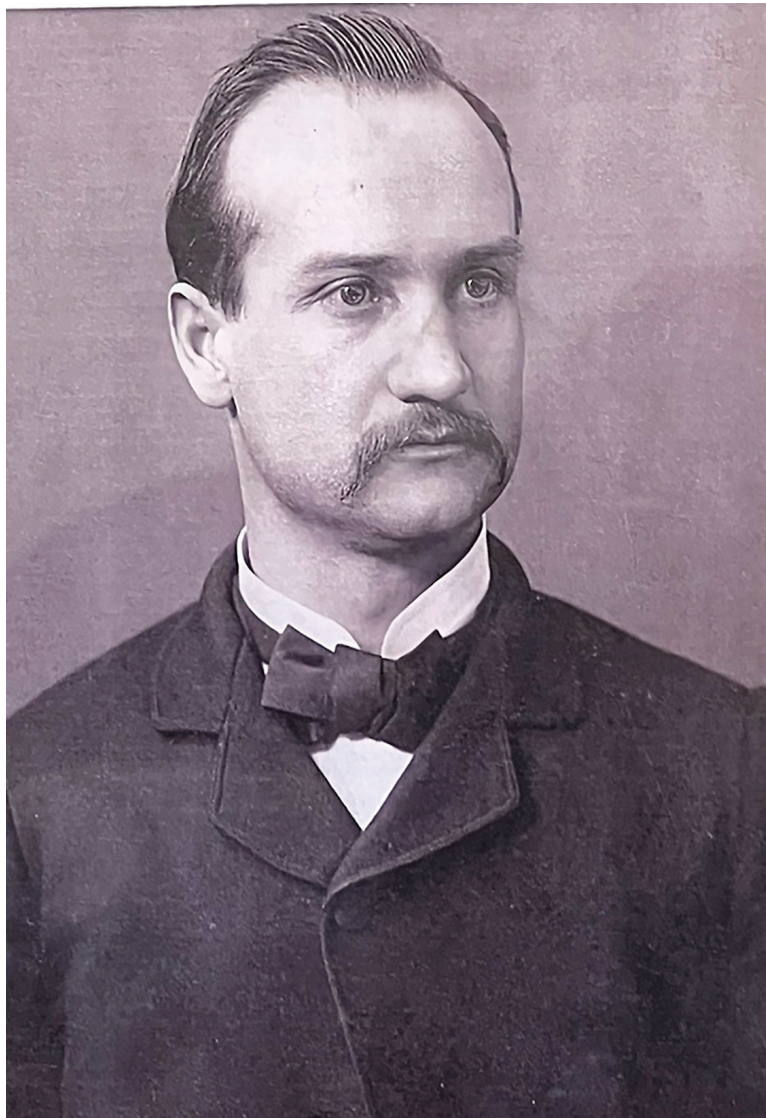

"From the day that Pat Donigan and Jack McGrewer discovered gold on Fraser River, prospectors have been trying their luck on the headwaters of Yukon and Mackenzie rivers. There was more gold taken out of Cariboo and Omineca than was given credit. Several years ago, Ed Schieffelin, the discoverer of Tombstone, Arizona, visited the Yukon. He said prospectors would knock around in that frozen region until some fellow would find a nest of gold frozen to the bedrock that would set men gold crazy.

"The richness of the Klondike supports the story as told by Dancing Bill of Cariboo. In 1865, Bill came to Walla Walla and said he had been in Russian America and had found a place where gold was so plentiful that nature didn't have gravel enough to cover up the chunks so the dust took muck and moss to do it. We all pronounced Bill a better liar than he was a dancer. But it is just possible that we were too skeptical. Bill once offered me $20 and agreed to throw in a dance if I would unload a mule that was loaded down with whisky and draw out a gallon from one of the kegs. Bill loved drink and dance better than he did gold or glory. But the Klondike gold fever is no different in its effects on the minds and movements of men than was the California, Arizona, Pike's Peak, Idaho Montana gold fevers. This is not the first great gold fever of the frozen north. Fraser river broke hundreds of Californians. Cariboo was rich and yet many a man lost his health and his wealth in trying to find a big fortune.

But the men who venture into wild mountain regions and pioneer the way to Nature's hidden treasures are worth a thousand times more to society and the state than those who loiter in cities and wait for something to turn up. But the men who are hatching schemes to mine the miners of the frozen north will succeed in mining many a tenderfoot's pocket.

Charles Edmond Jones (1856 – 1942) began working with his father, Heman Jones, the Publisher and Editor of the Idaho World newspaper when he was about ten years old. He inherited the job upon Heman's death in 1905 and continued printing the World in this historic building on Main Street until 1918.

This photo is featured in the historic Idaho World building located next to the Miners' Exchange on Main Street in Idaho City, which belongs to the Day family.

Watch for Wildlife on Highways and Avoid Costly Collisions

By Connor Liess, Public Information Specialist

BOISE COUNTY -- Winter is already tough for deer, elk, and other big game animals, and being near busy roads and highways can be deadly, so drivers are asked to keep a sharp eye out and avoid costly and potentially dangerous collisions.

Hitting a deer or an elk is hazardous to drivers and passengers, and often results in thousands of dollars in vehicle damage, not to mention a preventable loss of wildlife.

“Motorists need to be extra cautious and slow down, especially under low light conditions when visibility is limited,” said Toby Boudreau, Fish and Game Deer and Elk Coordinator. “Being extra careful and watchful is your best defense.”

The following precautions will help reduce your chances of an animal collision:

- Big game animals are especially active at dawn, dusk, and at night. Motorists should drive with greater caution during these times.
- Scan ahead and watch for movement, especially near the fog line and side of the road. When driving at night, watch for shining eyes in headlights.
- If you see one animal cross the road, slow down immediately and look for more to follow.
- Pay extra attention in areas posted with wildlife crossing signs. They are there for good reason.
- Using high beams can help you spot wildlife, but be considerate of other drivers when using them.
- Don't tailgate. Always keep a safe distance between you and the car in front of you to avoid an accident. If that driver brakes suddenly for an animal in the road, you may not be able to react in time.
- Don't swerve and risk losing control of your vehicle. Brake as much as possible and attempt to stay on the roadway.

The most serious crashes occur when drivers lose control of their vehicles trying to avoid an animal. It is usually safer to strike the animal than another object such as a tree or another vehicle.

Motorists should report any injury collision to the public safety dispatcher by calling 911, which will send officers to the scene. If possible, move your vehicle to a safe place and alert oncoming traffic with your emergency flashers until law enforcement authorities arrive.

Drivers who come across a dead animal on the side of the road are encouraged to report the roadkill on Idaho Fish and Game's website. The information collected about wildlife collisions helps identify high-risk areas and possible solutions to make highways safer.

People may also recover and keep some game animals killed by accidental auto collisions. You have 24 hours to notify Fish and Game if you salvage an animal, and 72 hours to obtain a salvage permit.

For more information on Fish and Game's roadkill and salvage webpage, including reporting requirements and a list of species legal to salvage, refer to or contact your nearest Fish and Game office.

EAST BOISE COUNTY --

It was a beautiful, crisp New Year's Day for the 20th annual Polar Bear Challenge at the Spring Shores Marina in Lucky Peak Reservoir. The Make-A-Wish Foundation expected between 250 and 300 people to participate in this year's event. Several participants honored former Channel 7 meteorologist Larry Gebert by entering the mustache contest, while others entered the costume contest to win prizes. To honor the lives and legacies of the event founders, the event was renamed this year and will now be known as the "Gebert-Arbaugh Polar Bear Challenge."

East Boise County Ambulance was on standby with personnel at the event.

These photographs were taken from the perspective of rescue diver, Cody Lott, with his waterproof GoPro camera mounted atop his head. Special thanks to the divers who kept the public safe in frigid water. This event helps raise money to grant wishes to Idaho children diagnosed with a critical illness. The organization hopes to grant 150 wishes over the next year. Visit idaho.wish.org to learn more about the magic of these wishes!
