

IDAHO CITY -- "A big thank you to Basin Elementary for joining us and Smokey in our mission to spread the vital message that only you can prevent wildfires!" said Courtney Nystrom with the USFS Boise National Forest and Idaho City Ranger District.

On May 20th, Idaho City Ranger District's Engine 431 collaborated with Fire Prevention Officers to deliver an engaging fire safety lesson to the Pre-K class at Basin Elementary. "The young students discovered essential functions of a fire engine, listened to the story of Smokey the Bear, participated in activities to practice extinguishing flames, and learned crucial wildfire prevention tips."

Basin Elementary Principal Jamie Pilkerton wrote: "We appreciate the opportunity for our preschool students to learn about fire prevention and explore the tools that our local wildland firefighters use to protect the forests. Our students are curious, and we want for them to have real life experiences within our own community!"

HORSESHOE BEND CITY COUNCIL MEETING

By Tracy Koslosky HORSESHOE BEND --

The following is a synopsis of the most recent meeting of the Horseshoe Bend City Council on Wednesday, May 14. This reporter missed the change of the meeting start time (meetings typically start at 7:00 p.m., this meeting began at 6:30 pm.) so we begin 10 minutes into the Water Rate Workshop. All council members were present, with seven audience members. City Attorney Tony Pantera arrived at 6:45 p.m. City Engineer Amy Woodruff led the workshop. Charts were displayed showing the water usage amounts of sample residential, commercial, and city properties. The workshop explored a proposal to increase the rate for customers using excessive amounts of water. The rate change was described as a "conservation effort" with the end goal being to encourage users to limit their water consumption.

Mayor Pat Goff indicated that the increase would probably only affect pricing during fire season, four months out of the year. Customers that use less than 5,000 gallons per billing cycle would not be affected. Goff said the reasoning behind the conservation effort was because, "we need the water." He added that the city was unable to apply for USDA grants because the water rate was currently too low and the city will need help to fund a new water tank to replace the leaking cedar one at the north end of town. Woodruff made sure that the council knew the fee increase would not affect those with normal water usage, only those accounts that tend to water large areas of landscaping would see an increase. "It's a very serious problem for three months out of the year," she said. The city park was named as one of those big users, but Woodruff said plans to remove the park from the city water system would take place over the summer.

The Public Works Department will install a pump house and begin irrigating the park with water from the Payette River. During the summer the park uses water equivalent to 27 homes. A large church in the area uses the equivalent of 65 homes. Council member Martye White said, "We either pay now or we pay later." He added that he has been "irritated" by those using too much water. There will be a public hearing next month to discuss and decide on the conservation rate adjustment fee resolution.

Goff called a public hearing to order at 7:03 p.m. to discuss the Conditional Use Permit (CUP) for Airlock, LLC. The business is owned by Daniel Barreto and manufactures gun suppressors. Barreto indicated that he had all the necessary state and federal permits to operate the business which will be located on the property of Barreto Manufacturing. Business hours will be Monday -Friday from 4:30 p.m.-6:30 p.m. Pantera said that it appeared as though all city codes had been complied with. Goff opened the floor to all opposed to the CUP-no one came forward, the same for those that were neutral. Four audience members spoke in favor of the CUP. Goff closed the hearing at 7:09 p.m. The CUP passed unanimously.

Updates. Department EMS: 12 calls last month, "nothing too exciting" according to the representative. "Fresh blood" will be joining the department soon, with two more recruits coming on board this summer. The department is worried about staffing levels when Deer Valley Subdivision completes building and new residents move in. Goff said that is the reason why the city is looking into creating an EMS District. The tiny house (to be used to house on-call personnel) is still without power.

Public Works: No update. City Engineer: Working on water system upgrades. Researching grants to replace cedar water tank. Deer Valley Subdivision is "moving along," according to Woodruff. Mayor will need to meet with the Boise County Commissioners regarding Horseshoe Bend's Area of Impact (the area of impact is the geographical area where a city is expected to grow). The city's impact area is reviewed every five years by both the city and the county. The county is responsible for setting the area of impact but typically consults with the city. Woodruff says that the impact area boundaries are "in theory a collaborative effort." The report must be submitted by the county no later than 12/31/2025.

City Attorney: Reviewed the agreement between Idaho Power and the city regarding waterline damage that occurred on March 4. The city is now part of the DigLine network.

Mayor: No Report.

The meeting adjourned at 7:21 p.m. The Horseshoe Bend City Council meets on the second Wednesday of each month at City Hall, 112 Ada Street. Meetings start at 7:00 p.m.

EAST BOISE COUNTY AMBULANCE: Lindstrom motioned to approve two individuals to a paid status, which was approved. EBCAD Director Mari Adams said that they do have the Unit 15 ambulance back in working condition. It was driven to Horseshoe Bend and "up and down hills." It will go back into service.

EXECUTIVE SESSION:

Chairman Tucker motioned to go into executive session to discuss a personnel issue. [Time 9:55am to 10:11am] No action required.

SQUAW CREEK SOIL CONSERVATION: Arthur Beal, serving his 50th year as a supervisor for SCSC, said, "Conservation is a never-ending process, and I feel privileged to be a part of that." He spoke about the other agencies and groups that they work with, their five-year plan, budget, and reporting to the state. He also spoke about invisible fencing for cows, which would be a tag on the animal's ear with a solar panel that would buzz when the animal got beyond the GPS coordinates. Beal said for 300 cows, it would be about $20 per cow. He said to rebuild fencing is very costly, because the wooden fences had burned from the fires.

Pon Yam Restoration

By Barbara McClain ICHF President

IDAHO CITY -- The Idaho City Historical Foundation continues their building restoration work with repairs to the exterior of the Pon Yam Chinese Museum and Cultural Center. T Gibson Masonry and Restoration has completed the exterior work on the Boise Basin Museum and the chimney on the Galbreaith House. All this work was made possible by the donations of our members and a generous anonymous benefactor. The Foundation is grateful to have the funds to do this badly needed and necessary work.

ICHF just wrapped up two weeks of projects with the Southern Idaho Corrections Institute inmates. Both sections of Pioneer Cemetery were raked from top to bottom: a much-needed rebuild of the rotted porch deck was done at the Kenn Smith Wildfire Museum; the posts at the museum were repaired at the bottom where there was rot; the Logging Display was started at the park adjacent to the Territorial Penitentiary; the Kenn Smith Garden was weeded; the Museum bathroom was painted and wainscoting added; a new front step for Pon Yam, complete with handrails; and other small projects at other ICHF properties. We would like to thank the local restaurants who fed the crew delicious lunches every day - Trudy's Kitchen, Kayak Pizza, The Gold Mine, and Idaho City Grocery. We would also like to thank Walulla Coffee and The Sasparilla for the afternoon ice cream treats.

by Idaho historian Arthur A. Hart. The history of Idaho City and the Boise Basin is the perfect gift for Father's Day, graduations, birthdays, Christmas, and more.

Here is the story of the 1862 gold rush, the arrival of the Chinese merchants and miners, gold dredging, the culture, the movers and shakers, the devastating fires that destroyed Idaho City twice, and the boom-andbust perseverance of the people.

Originally published in 1986, every page of Basin of Gold is profusely illustrated with historical photos from the Idaho City Historical Foundation's archives. The book attempts to capture the flavor of life in the bustling mining camps that grew up after gold was discovered on Grimes Creek. It is an account of eye-witness descriptions of people and eventspicturesque, witty, charming, and humorous.

Idaho historian Arthur Hart (1918-2020) believed that knowing local history strengthens a community, and as the

The Idaho City Historical Foundation has brought back into print after many years BASIN OF GOLD: LIFE IN THE BOISE BASIN 1862-1890 by Arthur A. Hart. The book has been out of print for decades but is now reprinted in a new edition available at the Boise Basin Museum and at the Idaho City Visitors Center.

Idaho City Historical Foundation has long attested, "History is our Future."

Basin of Gold is Back in Print

"Basin of Gold is the best historical overview we currently have of Idaho City and the Boise Basin," says Barbara McClain, President of the Idaho City Historical Foundation. It is told through the eyewitness stories and photographs of the people who lived that history, and we're glad to bring the book back in print after many years."

Basin of Gold is available now for $20 at the Boise Basin Museum on Montgomery Street as well as at the Idaho City Visitors Center on Main Street.

HORSESHOE BEND -- The Horseshoe Bend Middle School Baseball team competed in a Garden Valley Tournament on Friday, May 16, and came home in first place after besting Garden Valley 3-1 and McCall 14-6. After a disappointing cancelation of the high school's season due to a lack of players, the middle school boys stepped up to the plate and hit a home run for baseball that will hopefully result in a return to the sport at the high school level.

U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary Public Affairs

U.S. Department of Homeland Security United States Coast Guard Auxiliary

HORSESHOE BEND, Idaho- During this year's National Safe Boating Week, the U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary is encouraging all Americans to institute the safe boating practices necessary to enjoy our waters responsibly. For several decades, raising awareness of safe boating procedures has helped reduce injuries and fatalities even as the number of Americans spending time out on the water has continued to grow. Boat operators can continue to reduce the number of water-related accidents through proper preparation and sensible precautions. One such precaution measure is a free. voluntary vessel safety check conducted by the United States Coast Guard Auxiliary which can be an essential first step in ensuring a boat is ready for navigation on the water. New boaters can take courses to learn how they can ensure that everyone returns from the water safely. Another precaution is life jackets, which remain indispensable in preventing drowning - the most common cause of boating fatalities. For this reason, every vessel needs to be equipped with proper life jackets for everyone onboard, and they should be worn while on the water.

This week, we call upon the boating public to get a free vessel safety check to ensure that they are prepared for safe boating experiences. Through preventative measures and responsible behavior, we can help keep everyone out of harm's way while engaging in boating activities on our beautiful lakes and rivers. If you are ready to get a vessel safety check for 2025, please fill out a request form online and submit it. A Coast Guard Auxiliary vessel examiner will contact you to set up a vessel safety check at your convenience. By taking the necessary steps, we can make our waters even safer for all who enjoy them. For more information, please visit http:// cgaux.org/vsc to get started.

The Coast Guard Auxiliary is the uniformed civilian component of the U.S. Coast Guard and supports the Coast Guard in nearly all mission areas. The Auxiliary was created by Congress in 1939. For more information, please visit www.cgaux.org

Boise County

Horseshoe Bend, Idaho: A Storied Past, A Vibrant Present

By Dawna Booth HORSESHOE BEND ---

Nestled in the crook of the Payette River, in Boise County's scenic embrace, lies the town of Horseshoe Bend, Idaho – a place where the whispers of gold rush history mingle with the gentle murmur of a closeknit community. The town's very name, originally spelled Horse Shoe Bend, was derived from the dramatic U-shaped bend in the river that cradles it, serves as a constant reminder of the natural forces that shaped its destiny.

The story of Horseshoe Bend rises in the tumultuous year of 1862, a time when the discovery of rich gold deposits in the Boise Basin, a mere fifteen miles to the east, ignited a fervent rush of prospectors. This wildfire-related outage:

influx of fortune-seekers required supply routes and winter havens, and the fertile valley along the Payette River proved an ideal location. Initially known as Warrinersville, after the enterprising A.J. and Daniel K. Warriner who operated a vital sawmill, the fledgling settlement provided lumber for the burgeoning mining camps. The harsh Idaho winters often drove miners down from the high country, further solidifying the need for a permanent community.

By 1867, the town had officially adopted the evocative name of Horseshoe Bend, a testament to the river's defining geographical feature. This era saw the rise of key figures who shaped the town's early infrastructure such as Felix Harris. Harris, a miner hailing from Kentucky, recognized the need for reliable transportation and constructed toll roads connecting Horseshoe Bend to the lucrative mines of Placerville and Centerville. Reportedly, Harris collected significant tolls, sometimes in raw gold, highlighting the economic pulse of the time.

As the easily accessible gold dwindled, Horseshoe Bend transitioned into a vital agricultural and logging center. The Payette River, once a potential source of gold, became a crucial artery for transporting timber harvested from the surrounding forests. Sawmills dotted the landscape, drawing on the river's power and facilitating the growth of the local economy. In 1913, the arrival of the Boise Valley Railroad marked another significant turning point, connecting Horseshoe Bend to broader markets and facilitating the shipment of agricultural products and lumber.

For much of the 20th century, the Boise Cascade sawmill stood as the undisputed cornerstone of Horseshoe Bend's economy, providing employment for a substantial portion of the town's residents. The rhythmic hum of the mill and the scent of pine permeated the air, becoming synonymous with the town's identity. The closure of the mill in 2001 marked a significant shift, prompting the community to adapt and diversify.

Today, Horseshoe Bend, now the largest community in Boise County, has a population hovering around 750 residents and retains its small-town charm and strong sense of community. The annual Horseshoe Bend Community Day celebration showcases this spirit, bringing residents together for festivities and reinforcing their shared identity. While the echoes of the gold rush and the logging industry remain a part of its historical narrative, the town now embraces a more diverse economy, with residents working in nearby Boise or finding opportunities in local businesses and services catering to outdoor recreation.

The Payette River continues to be a central element of life in Horseshoe Bend, attracting anglers, rafters, and those seeking the tranquility of its flowing waters. The surrounding Boise National Forest offers ample opportunities for hiking, camping, and hunting, drawing outdoor enthusiasts to the area. The historic downtown area, though smaller than in its boomtown days, still features remnants of its past, with some original buildings remaining as silent witnesses to the town's evolution.

Horseshoe Bend stands as a testament to the resilience of small communities, having weathered the boom and bust cycles of resource extraction and adapting to the changing times. It's a place where the natural beauty of the Payette River Valley intertwines with a rich history, creating a unique and enduring character that continues to define this Gem State gem.
